Debate rages over cultural centre name

JUST a week out from the closing date for a community vote on the best indigenous name for the new Cowes' cultural centre, a local community group has raised doubts about the appropriateness of the options.

Controversially, without consulting with the general community, the Bass Coast Shire Council's administration asked the local Bunurong Land Council Aboriginal Corporation (BLCAC) to offer their suggestions.

They came up with the following:

- Barmewoon Meaning: Only My Strength
- Mogarmarlaly Murk Meaning: Lead Me
- Berninneit Meaning: Gather Together
- Kummargee Meaning: Rise Up.

These options are the subject of a community vote, closing next Monday, June 19.

However, not only did Cr Bruce Kent tell the shire they got the process wrong, at their meeting last month, but the Phillip Island Progress Association has cast doubt on the use of the Boon Wurrung language, although they've ended up having two-bob-each-way in a media statement this week.

The community group, also known as Island Voice, ran its own survey in which they say the 'Phillip Island Cultural Centre' came out as clear the winner with 34% of the votes, followed by Millowl/Phillip Island Cultural Centre as second preference on 20.6% of the votes.

The group said they also received correspondence as part of the survey casting doubt on the use of the four BLCAC options.

"Importantly, there were a number of comments made by participants stating that the indigenous names provided to BCSC have no meaning in the local indigenous language," said acting secretary of Island Voice Peter McMahon.

"This has been confirmed by Auntie Faye, a linguistics expert for the Boonwurrung people, who stated that she 'has no idea what language was used to come up with council's words'," he said.

Mr McMahon said there was presently a challenge being mounted in the Federal Court whereby the Bunurong would lose claim to Phillip Island.

"This would mean that the four names offered by BCSC may end up having no meaning to our local First Nations people i.e. they would be literally meaningless as a component of reconciliation."

Mr McMahon went on to say, that while the name 'Phillip Island Cultural Centre' was preferred, more people opted for

'Morrow' if any indigenous name was to be used.

Other options received the following votes in the Island Voice survey: Ber-ninneit 16.6%, Cowes Cultural Centre 14.75%, Kummargee 5.34% and Mogar-marlarly Murk 0.8%.

The Island Voice group said that almost 80% of those who voted were either a permanent resident of the Island (75.1%) or the owner of a local business (3.7%).

"If Council insists on moving forward with naming the building now, we ask that Council respect the will of the Community and utilises either the 'Phillip Island Cultural Centre' or the 'Morrow/Phillip Island Cultural Centre', rather than having to rename it at a later stage if the land title challenge is upheld by the Federal Court."

At a recent council meeting, however, Cr David Rooks said it wasn't just about how locals see the Island.

"I think about the 3 million visitors that visit Phillip Island each year and I think about how those visitors will see our island and its people," said Cr Rooks.

"Places like Uluru and Kata Tjuta are names that represent our first peoples. By naming our new cultural centre with one of four names offered by the Bunurong, our community demonstrates its efforts towards an ongoing respectful relationship with First Nations people."

Take extra care on the roads this winter

WITH the snow season officially opening, RACV is urging Victorians to prioritise safety on the roads as driving conditions can become more dangerous during winter.

Over the coming months, weather conditions are more likely to change frequently resulting in wet, icy and foggy roads, making it harder to see, stop and navigate.

RACV has posted six tips for safe driving in winter conditions:

1. Slow down - travel just a little slower, even on roads you know well.
2. Keep an eye on the weather - Be aware of changed conditions and heed any weather warnings particularly when travelling in areas where extreme weather is more common.
3. Maintain a safe breaking distance - it takes much longer to stop in the wet, so extend the distance between you and the car in front to at least four seconds.
4. Take care of your vehicle - ensure your car's safety equipment, windscreen wipers, batteries, lights, and brakes are working correctly.
5. Check your tyres - Tyres must have plenty of tread depth (no less than 1.5 millimetres) and no damage.
6. When in doubt, pull over - it is never worth the risk to drive in conditions you're even the slightest bit unsure of.

For more information on road safety and driving and maintenance tips, visit the RACV website.

Karen Treppo, from the Phillip Island Early Learning Centre, believes an inquiry will be worthwhile and is hopeful it will lead to some much-needed change in the industry.

Childcare fees force inquiry

FAMILIES with young children may see increased Child Care Service (CCS) fees as the Government will be changing the way it works out CCS entitlements from Monday, July 10.

The Australian Competition and Consumer Commission are holding an inquiry into Early Childhood Education and Care (ECEC) as a result of these impending changes.

Cost and availability barriers that affect access to ECEC services, factors that affect supply, demand and competition in the market, the impact and effectiveness of existing price regulations and ways to support better outcomes for children and families will be considered.

Karen Treppo from the Phillip Island Early Learning Centre (PIELC), which began in 2013 and offers sessional Kindergarten, Pre-Kindergarten, Long Day Care and After-Kindergarten Care, believes the inquiry will be worthwhile and is hopeful it will lead to some much-needed change in the industry.

"I think anything that highlights looking into the industry can only be a good thing and see where we can make improvements and better conditions for our long day care staff.

"They are not well paid and work very long hours, and only get four weeks off a year, so I think the burn out rate and the pay are one of the factors that is influencing the industry," Karen said.

Finding, maintaining, and keeping staff is, like many other industries, proving to be a huge issue for PIELC.

"Staffing is the biggest challenge for us in the industry at the moment, especially with COVID and the flu season, that puts extra pressure on services because rural is very hard to recruit early childhood educators.

"There just isn't the same amount of people applying that we used to have.

"Staff still have to have holidays, especially in the long day care industry. Compared to kinder who have their set holidays, the long day car service runs 50 weeks a year."

The availability of staff impacts on the number of children that can attend the Child Care Centre and staffing can be particularly challenging for the under three-year-olds, which cares for children from six weeks of age and requires a high staff to children ratio. With the over three group, there can be two staff to 22 children in a room.

"Because you have to abide by the ratios, especially in your under three-year-olds, you have to have one trained staff member to every four children.

So if you're struggling to get staff you may only be able to have eight children in that room per day."

This difficulty of not having a strong, reliable workforce within the industry leads to a waitlist of parents who are anxious to ensure they will be able to access care when they need it.

"Some people could be on the waiting list for one to two years, so we're actually getting children now that aren't even born to go on the waitlist, so they're actually on there and moving up the wait list, so 12 months down the track they may be able to get a spot."

The roll out of three-year-old kinder in 2022, which delivers two years of universal funded Kinder in 21 locals in Victoria, has taken some of the pressure off PIELC staff and parents' access to care for their toddlers.

"The over threes, we still do have a waitlist but that has softened slightly since the roll out of three-year-old kinder. We opted to go straight to the 15 hours for three-year-old kinder over two days. That allows families to work or study two full days, so they don't need childcare on those days, and we are free, so it's more cost effective for families."

POLICE BRIEFS

Operation Regal catches 132 offenders locally

BASS Coast Highway Patrol and police members carried out a four-day traffic operation over the long weekend.

Operation Regal saw 1360 drivers undergo a preliminary breath test by police.

A total of 132 people were caught committing offences on local roads.

Three drivers were found to be driving while under the influence of alcohol, and four were driving while affected by drugs.

Seventy-nine drivers were caught speeding and ten people were caught driving while disqualified or unlicensed.

There were 36 other various offences police found people committing and one vehicle was impounded.

One of these drivers intercepted by police was a 38-year-old, Venus Bay woman.

The woman returned a breath test result of 0.78 and will be summoned to court for exceeding the prescribed level of alcohol while driving.

The driver was served with a notice of suspension of her licence.

A spokesperson for the Bass Coast Highway Patrol said there was a substantial amount of traffic heading to and from our tourist areas over the long weekend, with the majority of drivers doing the right thing.

However, there were a number of people caught doing the wrong thing, which was disappointing for police patrols.

Three warrants, one man

IN THE late afternoon on Monday June 5, Wonthaggi Police Station attended a residential address in Wonthaggi.

Police located and arrested a 45-year-old male, as he had three warrants for his arrest, as he hadn't attended court when he should have.

The three warrants were executed, and the male has also been charged with bail offences.

The male was due to appear at the Latrobe Valley Magistrates' Court the following day.

Road rage in Cowes

POLICE are investigating a 'road-rage' assault that occurred on the afternoon of Tuesday, May 16, in Cowes.

Police believe that at approximately 2:30pm, a white and grey coloured Volvo tip truck, which was driven by a 59-year-old male, was driving south on Thompson Avenue approaching the roundabout at the intersection of Church Street.

It is alleged that a black coloured Porsche, driven by a male, was also driving in the area.

Police believe the driver of the truck and the driver of the Porsche then had a verbal altercation, which then escalated resulting in a physical altercation. Police are seeking any witnesses to this matter.

Earthquake near Foster

A MAGNITUDE 2.8 earthquake was recorded with an epicentre near Foster on Monday, June 12. The earthquake occurred at 8:29pm with 10 felt reports at the time. No injuries or damage were recorded. However, the Sentinel-Times Facebook page was inundated with comments of those who felt it. Here's what some users had to say: "Yes felt in Foster, but it was quite small. Wasn't sure if it was thunder instead. But now know it was an earthquake." "Binginwarri. Felt like a truck rumbled past the house but there was no truck, which would have been more interesting than an earthquake because we don't get a lot of traffic at that time of night." O'Brien blasts Labor

THE Nationals Member for Gippsland South, Danny O'Brien has not held back his frustration during a Public Accounts and Estimates Committee session. After struggling to receive answers to his questions from Labor, Mr O'Brien labelled the Labor Party members involved as a 'joke'. "You guys are a joke, you've got no interest in accountability or transparency and you should be embarrassed about yourselves," he said. The segment was even highlighted on Channel 7, as Mr O'Brien pushed Labor on certain questions which he believed were not being answered adequately. He stated via a social media post that there is a time limit during questioning, with Labor having a majority on the committee who 'deliberately try to run down the clock'. Mr O'Brien also posted segments online when asking questions about duck hunting support and the end of native timber harvesting.

Visitor centres help safe driving

VISITOR information centres across Victoria will support important safe driving messaging, acting as road safety hubs, thanks to an extended partnership between the Transport Accident Commission and the Victoria Tourism Industry Council (VTIC). After a successful pilot program, which included the Phillip Island Visitor Information Centre, the TAC and VTIC will work together for at least the next two years to tackle fatigue-related road trauma, with the TAC's popular Pause Stop program becoming a critical resource in 15 Visitor Information Centres (VICs) throughout Victoria. The Pause Stops will provide visitors with a range of resources to help them avoid drowsy driving and plan a safe onward journey, while they stretch their legs, take a break from the road and browse what each local region has to offer. The new partnership will also see the TAC become the naming rights partner of the Victorian Top Tourism Town Awards, which showcase the value of tourism to the towns and communities across Victoria. As part of their visitor itinerary, towns entering the awards were tasked with encouraging tourists to take regular breaks from the roads to avoid driving fatigued. Submissions for the Top Tourism Town Awards closed in April and the public voting component will take place in June. Winners will be announced at a special ceremony in July. For more information on Pause Stops and how to avoid driving while fatigued, visit www.tac.vic.gov.au/road-safety/pause-stop

Funds continue for language program

A $23.9 MILLION investment from the Victorian Budget 2023/24 will give more children across the state the experience of learning in another language at kindergarten. Minister for Early Childhood and Pre-Prep Ingrid Stitt announced the continuation of the State Government's Early Childhood Language Program – which currently funds around 200 kindergartens to deliver three hours each week across their Four-Year-Old kinder programs in a language other than English at no cost to parents. Bass Coast's Tracks and Trails network is expanding!

LET'S start today with a fun fact. There are currently 173 kilometres of tracks and trails managed by Bass Coast Shire Council. This includes 273 individual trails, located in both coastal and urban environments, which provide wonderful opportunities for walking and cycling to enable us to enjoy our beautiful region.

Council's Bass Coast Tracks and Trails Strategy 2022-2032 has a vital role to play in creating a healthy, connected, social community by encouraging active lifestyles while reducing traffic congestion.

We recently added the Guy Road Shared Pathway to our growing network of trails. This pathway provides a safe, new travel route for our community, while also promoting improved community health through active recreation.

This 6 kilometre long, 2.5-metre-wide shared cycling and walking link connects Bass Valley Primary School and Children's Centre through to the Corinella Community Centre, via a scenic route through Tenby Point.

The demand and appetite for trails is growing rapidly. The pandemic had a huge influence on the value people place on trails, resulting in significant increased utilisation of these amenities.

Council is currently advocating for the State Government to help fund new pathways for more people in the community to enjoy.

Already underway is the Cowes to Rhyll Shared Path project which aims to connect Rhyll to the main township of Cowes, plus improve pedestrian access in the community. These works will provide a safe, off-road link between the two areas increasing well-being, reducing vehicle traffic and continuing the expansion of our trail network.

The trail will also create a new nature-based tourism visitor attraction, providing access to the unique experience of walking and cycling in Bass Coast. We expect this trail to be completed by late 2023.

We also expect to begin construction later this year on a new pathway connecting two of Bass Coast's key residential and commercial towns, Inverloch and Wonthaggi. This new off road shared path will provide greater active recreation and commuter links, playing a critical role in creating the health and wellbeing of the community.

A 14 kilometre inland route, attractions along this pathway will include wetlands and native vegetation, which provide habitat to wildlife and glimpses across the Bass Strait. This pathway will enhance the current bio-link corridor which connects pockets of native vegetation, plus will include revegetation works in existing cleared areas.

Excitingly, this pathway connects to a much greater off-road shared pathway link extending from Inverloch to Cowes, and, in future will form part of the Gippsland Odyssey, a 700km path linking Gippsland. Furthermore, the network of trails will also link to the Mornington Peninsula with a quick trip on the Phillip Island to Stony Point ferry.

We also expected construction to begin soon on the Corinella Pathway Project. The construction currently involves three alignments, a footpath along Albon Street, linking the existing footpath along Smythe Street to the end of Peters Street through to the Corinella Foreshore Jetty with another footpath to be delivered along the Esplanade. A raised pedestrian safety crossings will be installed in Peters Street.

I'm excited to get out on my bike exploring all Bass Coast's new trails soon – I look forward to you joining me!

Cost of living bites across the community

PEOPLE are needing more help to get by and as the cost of living really starts to bite, the Salvation Army Leongatha are on the ground supporting locals in need.

Last week, the charity held their Red Shield Appeal which raised funds that go back into the local community.

The funds will be helping people in need with food and finances and to avoid homelessness.

Captain Amanda Hart, from Salvation Army Leongatha is seeing an increase in people accessing their services from across a wide range of demographics.

"The cost of living increasing just makes even the simplest things a lot more expensive and so we have seen an increase in the number of people coming in," she said.

"We still have quiet days, but we are generally having busier days with more people coming in and just needing help with just getting by until the next pay.

"A lot more people that we haven't seen before, which is tough too because if you've never had to actually ask for help before, even just stepping into the building to ask us is a tough thing."

Food items and other essentials are available for people who are struggling, with the organisation sourcing the bulk of their items from the local Woolworths and ALDI, together with some personal donations.

"We're really fortunate in Leongatha to have food and other things donated from Woolworths and from ALDI, so we do a pickup from ALDI one day a week and Woolworths' five days a week.

"It's bakery items and food that's almost at its best before or use by, which means we can then hand that out to people. So rather than them putting it into land fill, we can then use it in our food bank."

While the charity obtains regular supplies, they are always happy to receive more, particularly staples and non-perishable items.

"Pasta and sauce, rice the things you can just reach for in the pantry to make a quick and easy meal, tea and coffee is always good too, soups that kind of thing and even ready-made meals as well, and baked beans and spaghetti are good too."

Despite the pressure of mounting costs, the local community remains generous.

"Considering the costs of living especially, we've had a really great response with the Red Shield Appeal so we're really appreciative of such a generous community, and I want to say thank you to the community for their support with the Red Shield Appeal.

"The funds we raise locally for the Red Shield Appeal go back into our local community so that will help ensure that our emergency relief service continues, and our other programs as well such as our community dinner on Tuesday nights."

Jordan Crugnale MP and PICAL manager Greg Thompson receiving hamper bags.

Hundreds needing food relief in Bass Coast

THE escalating costs of living are hitting many of Bass Coast's more vulnerable families.

The PICAL emergency food relief program is seeing more people now on a daily basis, than at the peak of the COVID pandemic.

According to PICAL Manager Greg Thompson, "the emergency food relief Pantry is now assisting groups of people who have never before needed help. Whereas most of our previous customers were long-term unemployed people and those struggling with other chronic financial problems, we are now seeing totally new groups of 'working poor' and even 'working homeless' people who have never before needed help putting food on the table" he said.

Greg added that, "our numbers of visitors to PICAL's food pantry have jumped to over 200 people each week. Most of these visitors are mums with families at home, so we are now feeding almost 350 people every week; many of them are children."

The PICAL pantry issues hampers with enough emergency food rations to last one person for a week.

So a family of four will receive this many hampers each week.

These hampers include fresh produce, packaged staple foods such as flour pasta and rice, and frozen complete meals cooked by another team of PICAL volunteers.

"This equates to more than 250,000 meals every year that we are now providing, but in addition to increases in demand, we are also finding that our supply lines are now tightening too," he said.

"We gather leftover edible fresh produce from all surrounding supermarkets in Cowes each day and from the very generous local butcher at San Remo who makes a large weekly donation of meats. We also order a pallet-load of packaged staple foods from Food Bank Australia every fortnight, but these suppliers now have less to provide as they too are facing tough times themselves."

"We also used to propagate large amounts of our own fresh vegetables in our old community garden, but we decommissioned the old garden 18 months ago when we moved sites, and we are still hoping to gain occupancy of the new Phillip Island Community Garden at the end of June 2023."

The PICAL food relief program has also been hit by the inability of the Phillip Island and San Remo chapter of Boomerang Bags to operate at full capacity.

The PISR Boomerang Bags group used to make all of PICAL's food hamper bags from leftover fabrics.

However, they also lost their base at the former PICAL site, and have been waiting to resume their operations at the old CFA Station in Blue Gum Reserve Cowes, when that site becomes available.

In the interim, the Boomerang Bags group has been trying to survive from a bungalow in the back yard of the group's coordinator, but this has caused numbers of 'Bag

Lady' volunteers and outputs of hampers to decline significantly.

Hearing of PICAL's need for more food hamper bags, Member for Bass, Jordan Crugnale has helped with the donation of 500 'Community at Heart' bags.

"The message on the bags is about having our community at heart and looking out for each other, and PICAL's food pantry exemplifies this spirit," said Jordan.

While Greg added that PICAL's food relief program is not funded on an ongoing basis, and costs the organisation around $40,000 each year.

"Although many fresh vegetables and meats are gathered at no cost from local outlets, we still need to purchase the discounted Food Bank Australia packaged supplies, and ingredients for our Cooking Program.

"The money to pay for these things comes from community donations, any grants we can secure, and our own fundraising activities. Everyone involved in our food relief program is a volunteer and none of this money goes to administrative overheads.

"We are also seeking donations of any spare unopened packaged goods sitting at the back of household pantries, provided they are still within their Used-By Dates."

If you can help in any way then cash, home-grown fresh produce and packaged goods donations can be left at PICAL, at 16 Warley Avenue Cowes, every weekday between 9am and 3pm.

Jordan Crugnale receives National Emergency Medal

JORDAN Crugnale, State member for Bass was awarded a National Emergency Medal alongside five other members from the Pound Creek Fire Brigade.

Jordan is a member of the brigade and served on strike teams at Swift Creek and Sarsfield during the 2019-2020 fires.

While an official presentation ceremony was held in April for the members, Jordan was unable to make it.

At their last meeting last Tuesday night, Ivan Smith, Pound Creek Brigade Captain, invited a CFA Commander to their meeting to present the medal to Jordan.

The National Emergency Medal is awarded to persons who rendered sustained or significant service during nationally significant emergencies in Australia.

The Pound Creek Fire Brigade is a small, tight knit and very active brigade who are committed to serving.

They have over 30 active members who will put their hand up for strike teams in Victoria and interstate.

“From the day I joined the brigade, the first female actually, I have always felt supported, have learnt so much from our very experienced members and this applies also on the fire ground. I love my brigade,” Jordan said.

“That 19/20 fire season across the country was beyond devastating- we saw 33 lives lost, thousands of houses razed, hectares upon hectares scorched, fauna perished in their billions.

We were at Swifts Creek, Sarsfield, Reedy Flat and Anglers Rest,” Jordan recounts.

“We were up at Anglers Rest the day after Bill Slade was killed by a falling tree, it was solemn, surreal and we couldn't believe it - his family, friends, colleagues and all at Parks Victoria would of course be absolutely grief stricken and shocked. Bill was so loved, highly respected, a mentor to many and his skills and expertise immeasurable.

“It's kind of weird to get medal for just doing your duty as a citizen. This is for Bill, my brigade, everyone that put their hand up and everyone affected.”

Regular music soiree evenings run throughout the year, bringing together music students of all ages. The soirees are conducted in the Newhaven College Performing Arts Centre. ## Newhaven College music program aims for excellence NEWHAVEN College is looking to award Music Scholarships to new or existing students entering the College in Years 5, 7, 9 and 11 in 2024. Students who are passionate and dedicated to music and demonstrate strong musical potential are encouraged to apply.

Newhaven College's formidable music teachers and tutors nurture each music student to reach their highest potential. Each student is encouraged to discover their unique expression of music while developing confidence, ease, excellence and enjoyment each step of the way. The College believes stars of the future are on campus right now, learning their artistry while sharing their talents with other students, their families and the whole community.

In the first half of 2023, the College has celebrated numerous musical productions, concerts and performances. Individual music students, choirs, bands and ensembles perform regularly at school assemblies, providing students a chance to perform for the school community.

Evening soirees and afternoon concerts and showcases, held regularly, provide the perfect opportunity for music students to perform in front of an audience of peers, parents and teachers. Whether performing solo or accompanied by fellow students or music tutors, music students learn valuable lessons about managing nerves and other issues around performing to a live audience.

The highlight of Newhaven College's calendar is the Senior School production. This year, The Little Mermaid did not disappoint. The production creates a space for students of varying musical abilities to either tread the stage or play in the orchestra, experiencing the wonderment of being involved in such an event. For many, it is their first time on (or under) the stage allowing for personal expression and growth.

Newhaven College's involvement in South Eastern Independent Schools Association (SEISA) encourages students to broaden their talents across many disciplines. In May, 27 Newhaven College choristers and instrumentalists travelled to Beacons Hills Berwick for the SEISA Music Festival 2024. Throughout the two days, students were privileged to work alongside members of Orchestra Victoria and The Australian School of Performing Arts. The event culminated in a gala concert.

On Tuesday June 13, The Westernport Hotel in San Remo was transformed into an underage rock venue allowing Newhaven College's VET

Music second year students to perform covers and original songs. For some students, this was their first time performing in a venue outside the College. It really was a special evening with all students rising to the occasion and performing on par with professional musicians. The night at The Westernport also gave the students experience in setting up for the gig, lighting and sound.

Many Newhaven College students and staff become involved in regional productions with groups such as Leon-gatha Lyric Theatre and Won-thaggi Theatrical Group. One of Newhaven College's voice teachers, Kerry Lockhart, who played the lead role in the recent production of Dusty, is immensely proud of Newhaven College's passion for music and performing arts. Kerry says "Student participation in local productions can be attributed to the embedded performing arts culture that is fostered at Newhaven College. The dedicated and passionate staff work to train and enable the students to foster and grow their skills and talents in this area of their education. We are so proud of all these amazing students volunteering and contributing to their community in this way."

When asked why students should apply for a Music

Scholarship at Newhaven College, Head of Music, Matthew Goss is passionate: "Discover your musical talents at Newhaven College! Through a music scholarship, you can join our vibrant music program with choirs, ensembles, and bands that nurture your passion. Unlock your potential and create lifelong memories. Embrace the wonderful world of music at Newhaven College"

Newhaven College is looking to award Music Scholarships to talented, passionate and dedicated students of music who demonstrate strong musical potential. The offer is for students entering Newhaven College in Years 5, 7, 9 and 11 in 2024. Music Scholarships include individual tuition and academic tuition fee reductions for the duration of the student's enrolment at Newhaven College, subject to satisfactory progress. Music Scholarship application information and forms can be found on Newhaven College's website, under Enrolments/Scholarships.

Enquiries regarding the Music Scholarship should be directed to Matthew Goss, Head of Music on 5956 7505 and all applications must be submitted via the Newhaven College website or to Mrs Belinda Manning at belinda.manning@newhavencol.vic.edu.au

Update sought on highway at Kilcunda

THE skate park at Kilcunda is in advanced state of readiness but what about the highway improvements promised this time last year?

Turns out the Member for Bass Jordan Crugnale also wants to know.

In State Parliament on Tuesday, May 30, Ms Crugnale called on the Minister for Roads and Road Safety, Melissa Horne, to provide an update.

She described the increase in traffic in the area from freight, for surfing and the iconic as a ‘chaotic vehicle shemozzle’.

You can add to that kids wanting to cross the road to go to the skate park.

The Delines to play Meeniyen Town hall

MEENIYAN town hall presents a taste of Real American Music with the return of Portland Oregon's The Delines and the Australian debut of Mississippi's Jimbo Mathus on Saturday, June 17.

Touring Australia for just the second time on the back of the acclaimed release of their 2022 album, The Sea Drift, The Delines are the result of the musical collaboration Willy Vlautin and singer Amy Boone.

The group is an opportunity for Willy - who is also an acclaimed novelist, with two of six novels, Lean on Peter and The Motel Life having been made into feature films - to continue writing his mini-narrative songs that he gained notoriety for as the former front man of the alt-country group Richmond Fontaine.

Performing in Australia for the first time (as a solo artist), Jimbo Mathus is an American original who has blazed a singular trail since selling over three million records with New Orleans swing outfit Squirrel Nut Zippers in the '90s.

It's going to be a night of great, great music this June when these two champs of tunes share the stage at the Meeniyen Town hall.

What does El Niño mean for Inverloch?

THE USA National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) have called it, El Niño has started in a key area of the Pacific Ocean, near the equator, affecting Australia's weather.

Australia's Bureau of Meteorology is yet to declare an El Niño for us but say the damaging weather pattern, which last occurred in 2018-19, is at least a 70 per cent likelihood.

How it impacts prevailing winds and coastal erosion is not well understood but the Bureau says that “the 10 driest winter-spring periods on record for eastern Australia all occurred during El Niño years.

Locally, many fear it could also mark the return of weather conditions which gouged 70 metres of beach and dunes along the Inverloch Surf Beach in 10 years.

And Beach Erosion Officer at the Inverloch Surf Lifesaving Club, Warren Cook, is concerned that's exactly what's going to happen.

“My concern is that the beach erosion is going to ramp up again and go back to causing significant damage, if not over the winter and into spring this year, then by April and Easter next year.

“It's a major issue.

“I've been on to the Minister about it, asking the government to act, and got back a letter which basically said they're waiting on the recommendations to come out of the Cape-to-Cape project and from DEECA.

“That's supposed to be coming in the middle to later this year, which isn't far away, but by the time they decide what to do and get it funded, it could be a couple of years away.

Despite some stop-gap erosion efforts, the surf beach at Inverloch has continued to recede and there are concerns the return of an El Niño weather pattern will spell a return to the particularly damaging conditions of a few years ago. What are they doing about it?

“It's not good enough.”

Even under the more benign weather pattern of recent years, there's still been further beach erosion, west of the seawall towards Flat Rocks, where ancient coastal banksias have continued to collapse onto the beach, and east of the sandbags in front of the surf club.

Here the dunes have continued to retreat, further cutting back the land on the eastern side of the clubhouse.

Only a year or so ago, the clubhouse wasn't visible from the beach, hidden by the dunes and coastal vegetation, now it offers fearfully commanding views of the beach and ocean, east and west, along the Inverloch Surf Beach – but for how long?

Both the Bass Coast Shire Council and the South Gippsland Conservation Society share the surf club's frustration at the lack of a comprehensive plan and action.

Twelve months ago, Bass Coast Shire Council Mayor Cr Michael Whelan said: “We've lost 70 metres of coastline in 10 years and one more storm and we reckon we'll lose Wreck Creek.”

He still stands by those remarks.

“We remain very concerned. The Cape-to-Cape Resilience Project provides the basis for formulating action, but we want to see government investment to back up that research,” Cr Whelan said this week.

Where's the waste?
EPA can 'fine' to find out

EPA Victoria has warned Gippsland businesses and landholders there's more to waste disposal than just getting it off the property, and reminds the public that it's easy to report illegal dumping.

The warning comes after EPA fined a local business that got rid of its stockpiles of waste but couldn't show that they went to a lawful place.

EPA Gippsland Regional Manager Jessica Bandiera says whether it's a matter of bungled paperwork or deliberate offending, EPA doesn't play "Where's Wally" with industrial waste.

"Any lawful place, which includes a licensed landfill or recycling facility, will give you documented proof to show they received your industrial waste and that you did the right thing," Ms Bandiera said.

"That paperwork also proves your pile of rubbish, demolition waste or asbestos has not been dumped in a creek, in the bush or on some unfortunate farmer's land," she said.

"If you are a business generating or dealing with waste, you have duties. You need to manage your risks, onsite and when you dispose of, or hand on your waste."

Most businesses do the right thing, and EPA won't hesitate to use its regulatory powers to protect the community and the environment from pollution from the ones that don't."

Under the Environment Protection Act 2017 and the Infringements Act 2006, the operator has the right to have the infringement notice reviewed or be considered by a court.

EPA is also encouraging people to report illegal dumping; members of the public often see things that don't look right, and anyone can report it anonymously.

Members of the public can report pollution by calling EPA's 24-hour hotline on 1300 372 842 or providing details online at www.epa.vic.gov.au/report-pollution/reporting-pollution

BCAL musicians involved with the BCAL Practical Musical Program performed three songs for the visiting MP, Nina Taylor MP.

BCAL musos showcase their talents for all to enjoy

BASS Coast Adult Learning (BCAL) was among eight winners of the 16th annual Victorian Learn Local Awards.

Parliamentary Secretary for Training & Skills, Nina Taylor MP paid a visit to the BCAL campus to chat with staff, look around and hear the winners of the practical musical program perform.

The group performed three songs, one a Hebrew classic, a haunting cover of Bad Moon Rising and an original song written by mandolin player David Hart called Rol-lin' into Wonthaggi and is a tribute to the people who have lived in the area for generations and have had to accept newcomers to the area.

Minister for Training and Skills and Higher Education Gayle Tierney acknowledged the winners.

This year marks the 16th anniversary of the awards, which are backed by the State Government. The awards honour learners, trainers, leaders and providers in Victoria's Learn Local sector which includes more than 240 not-for-profit community groups.

Under the Victorian Learn Local Pre-Accredited Program Award (for small providers), BCAL was announced as the winner for their Practical Music program.

The program was developed by BCAL in consultation with music industry professionals to provide a broader experience of the music industry.

Participants bring their particular interest to the course and are connected with professional sound engineers, musicians, orchestras, choirs, social media experts, radio presenters and promoters.

Across 12-weeks they cover every avenue of the music business and have the opportunity to head into further education to study certificates III and IV in Music, with scope to specialise in performance, composition, sound production and business.

On completion, the musos will have gained broad and practical insights into the industry, which enhances their likelihood of finding ongoing employment, or developing their own music micro-business.

Practical Music provides invaluable encouragement, mentoring, networking, skill building and the confidence to make the connections to explore their chosen path.

New life for Korumburra’s train turntable

By Andrew Palocz

KORUMBURRA’S train turntable departed for a new home on Wednesday, set to head into service at Yarra Glen station when plans to reopen a section of the Yarra Valley Railway between there and Healesville are realised.

Local Korumburra historian and railway enthusiast Bob Newton was on hand to see the turntable lifted by crane and skilfully loaded onto a waiting trailer, sad to see a part of the town’s history depart.

The turntable arrived in Korumburra from Foster in 1994 to support the South Gippsland Tourist Railway, which closed in 2015.

More recently, VicTrack and South Gippsland Shire Council liaised with a heritage architect concerning the turntable and as it is classed as equipment, a permit for removal was not required.

Healesville’s Andrew Blair was present for the turntable’s removal, with the Yarra Valley Railway volunteer looking forward to welcoming it to its new home.

He said a heritage railway group has been striving to return the railway line to service since it closed in 1980.

While there were initially hopes of reviving a much longer stretch of track, the destruction of eight bridges during the 2009 bushfires ensured that would not be viable.

The Korumburra train turntable is removed for its trip to Yarra Glen Station. A17_2423

Andrew said the intention is to run steam trains between Yarra Glen and Healesville, with a turntable at Yarra Glen essential for that to happen.

A VicTrack spokesperson said the turntable removed from Korumburra Station is one of very few in Victoria able to accommodate larger locomotives.

“It was allocated to the Yarra Valley Railway by VicTrack, as part of our work to offer disused rail assets to tourist and heritage rail operators and museums so they can be preserved or put back into use,” the spokesperson said.

Lifelong Korumburra citizen Alan Cherrett was among those who saw the turntable prepared for its journey.

“It’s a lot of history gone by the wayside, and it’s history that will never be replaced,” Alan said.

Andy Wilson, also of Korumburra, agreed it is a shame to see bits of history go and said he liked the tourist railway when it operated but maintenance costs became unmanageable.

Although the turntable is gone, the pit it sat in is considered to be of significant heritage value and is expected to be incorporated into South Gippsland Shire Council’s plans for the Korumburra Station precinct.

“Council will look at options to convert the space into a feature of the railway precinct redevelopment,” a council spokesperson said.

Council is currently seeking approval from Heritage Victoria to progress the redevelopment in and around the turntable site.

Wait continues for traffic lights at tricky intersection

KORUMBURRA Business Association (KBA) has been advocating for the installation of traffic signals at the intersection of Radovick and Commercial Streets during next year’s planned upgrade of Commercial Street but concedes it has been unsuccessful in that aim.

While the prospect of installing signals at that intersection was suggested in the 2016 Korumburra Town Centre Streetscape Master Plan commissioned by South Gippsland Shire Council, it was floated as a future option.

“The interim option aims to minimise redundant work, should the intersection be signalised, by retaining existing kerbs and using garden bed planting instead of temporary asphalt or footpaths,” it is stated in the Master Plan document, suggesting a staged approach to installing signals.

KBA argues the best course of action is to install signals at the intersection during the Commercial Street upgrade.

“It makes sense to do it properly the first time instead of down the track,” KBA secretary

Noelene Cosson said, noting that delaying that initiative will add to the cost as construction prices continue to rise.

“We feel installing signals now and moving the pedestrian crossing to the intersection would give safer access to the highway from the south side of town,” Noelene said.

She stressed that while the Streetscape Master Plan spoke of the installation of signals in a longer-term context, that was seven years ago.

Noelene spoke of the fact there are already traffic lights in the main street, outlining reasons she believes they would be better placed at the Radovick and Commercial Street corner.

She said the current location of the traffic lights is challenging for trucks coming down the Commercial Street hill and they would be better suited on flatter ground.

“One of the main things is that you’re giving a safe entry onto the highway whether you are turning West or East,” Noelene said, describing it as a difficult intersection.

“Despite our efforts, we have not been successful in having this completed during the upgrade of Commercial Street,” she said.

However, KBA is still hopeful its desire for a safer, signalled intersection will eventually be realised.

“The Department of Transport and Planning is exploring the potential for traffic signals at the intersection and will continue to liaise with council to progress the matter,” Noelene said.

It is noted that the Commercial Street upgrade design will take this into consideration for easier installation when that time comes.

Member for Gippsland South Danny O’Brien is supportive of KBA’s call for traffic lights at the challenging intersection, having lobbied to State Government on its behalf.

“I wrote to the Minister for Roads two years ago on behalf of the KBA seeking traffic lights at the Radovick Street intersection; the response simply said the Department of Transport would work with council on the issue and I’ve not heard further from the government since,” Danny said.

“In my experience, it can be very difficult to safely exit Radovick St onto the highway and I certainly believe improvements should be looked at by both the Department of Transport and council.”

A council spokesperson said that while the requested traffic signals are at the intersection of two arterial roads, which are the responsibility of the Victorian Government’s Department of Transport and Planning (DTP), council has been working with DTP on the issue, with a positive long-term outlook likely.

“DTP has confirmed that they are exploring the potential for these traffic signals and whilst the signals are not able to be installed during council’s upcoming Korumburra Streetscape Project due to timing and budget constraints, the streetscape design will make other improvements to the intersection and has been designed not to impede the installation of traffic signals in the future,” the spokesperson said.

Continuing focus on Nyora’s future

NYORA locals will gather on Tuesday June 20 as they continue to help establish the future direction of the town, with a new Nyora Community Plan moving closer to creation.

The town’s existing Community Plan, developed in 2010, needs replacement.

This will be the third community session under the guidance of South Gippsland Shire Council community strengthening officer Barbara Look, with Cr Mick Felton, a Nyora resident stressing the importance of locals turning up and sharing their ideas.

Mick gave the example of community wanting a childcare centre, saying that if council is aware of that, it is able to pursue funding towards that objective from State and Federal Governments.

The meeting will have a dual purpose, with plans to discuss the establishment of a new town group to represent the various organisations in Nyora and the town’s overall community.

Mick agreed such a central body will prove valuable in getting necessary projects done in the town, such as the need to determine the future of Nyora Railway Station.

He said that while such a group won’t get off the ground at the meeting, he hopes further discussion will advance the situation, concurring with Barbara’s view that an overarching group would be well positioned as a custodian of the new Nyora Community Plan, able to ensure it is updated in timely fashion.

The meeting will be held at Nyora Public Hall from 6.30pm on June 20, following a General Law community consultation session that runs from 4.30pm, with sausages in bread served from 6pm.

Mayor’s Message

Speak Up and Show Up

COUNCIL is ramping up the opportunities for you to provide feedback on a range of topics which include the General Local Law review and Children and Families Plan.

There have already been four General Local Law Review pop-ups in communities across South Gippsland, with four still to come. The next ones are in:

- Leongatha on Friday, June 16 from 9am to 12 noon in front of Memorial Hall.
- Welshpool on Friday, June 16 from 1.30pm to 4.30pm at the Rural Transaction Centre.
- Foster on Saturday, June 17 from 8am to 12 noon at the Prom Country Farmers Market; and
- Nyora on Tuesday, June 20 from 4.30pm to 6.30pm at the Nyora Hall.

This is stage one of feedback and closes on Monday, June 26. Further opportunities will be available throughout the remainder of the process.

The Children and Families Plan engagement has had a terrific response thus far, but it is important that we hear from more people in our community. We particularly want to we hear from parents of children up to 12 years of age. This is a comprehensive look at the services we provide, how they currently work for South Gippsland’s families and how we can plan for the future. There is plenty happening in this space, including advocacy work, which makes this an extremely timely opportunity to hear from you. Feedback closes on Monday, June 19.

To provide your feedback on any of these plans, please visit: <https://your-say.southgippsland.vic.gov.au>

Leongatha Early Learning Centre Now Open

This is an exciting new development that offers 121 places for childcare and kindergarten services for families in South Gippsland.

Thank you to Parliamentary Secretary for Early Childhood Katie Hall MP, Tom McIntosh MP, Councillors, our Chief Executive Officer and everyone else who came along to celebrate this special day.

What a beautiful facility this is and I have no doubt it will be an important asset to our community for many years to come.

Meet the Mayor and Deputy Mayor

The Meet the Mayor and Deputy Mayor meetings were held again last week with a number of people taking the opportunity to come along and talk to us about a range of topics including women’s sheds, planning and infrastructure.

The next meeting date will be advertised soon. I encourage you to book in a time and come along, even if it is just to have a general chat to us.

Of course, these aren’t the only opportunity you have to speak with us, or any other Councillor. Our contact details are on the website and we welcome anyone to reach out.

King’s Birthday Long Weekend

It was great to see so many people out-and-about in South Gippsland.

I attended the Loch Food and Wine Festival and the Korumburra Southern Lights at Coal Creek, and was happy to see some familiar and many new faces enjoying the day out.

Heart health screening a success at Wonthaggi Plaza

GIPPSLAND'S local and not-for-profit private health insurer Latrobe Health Services partnered with Wesfarmers, Priceline Pharmacy, SiSU Health, and Novartis to bring free 15-minute heart health checks to Wonthaggi Plaza this month.

A trained clinician facilitated 105, 15-minute tests to check key heart health indicators including blood pressure, heart rate, body composition, diabetes risk, and non-fasting cholesterol levels.

Latrobe Health Services CEO, Ian Whitehead, said that research has shown Gippsland has some of the poorest cardiovascular health outcomes in Australia.

"This initiative is one way to help our members and community check if they are at risk," said Mr Whitehead.

"We're passionate about more than health insurance. We love to help support better health outcomes in our communities.

"Results were provided immediately following the test, with the pharmacist providing key insights on the results, advice on how to keep your heart healthy, and informing participants on how to follow up with your GP in further action is required," Mr Whitehead said.

According to Amy Sabatini, Chief Pharmacist with Priceline, coronary heart disease remains the dominant cause of death among Australians with worse outcomes experienced in regional and rural areas.

"It is important to get heart health check-ups to give you the best chance of receiving the right treatment and possibly diagnosing underlying medical conditions," Ms Sabatini said.

Leongatha Men's Shed has partnered with Mind Australia for a community information event. A29_4422

Mental health support made easy

A MAJOR objective of Men's Shed is to advance the health and wellbeing of men Australia wide, which is why Leongatha Men's Shed has partnered with Mind Australia for a community information event.

Mental health organisation Mind Australia has provided more than 1000 hours of support to people in the Gippsland region who are experiencing mental health and wellbeing concerns, through the Mental Health and Wellbeing Hubs.

Mind Hubs Lead Practitioner for Gippsland, Donna Hall, will be joining the Leongatha Men's Shed on June 30, to talk about the work mind is doing through the Hubs.

Hubs operate in Cowes, Traralgon and Wonthaggi and support more than 50 people across Baw Baw, Bass Coast, East Gippsland, South

Gippsland and Wellington shires, as well as the City of Latrobe.

The Mental Health and Wellbeing Hubs were funded by the Victorian government in 2021 in response to the COVID-19 pandemic.

They act as a 'front door' service to the mental health system and provide Victorians of all ages with faster access to mental health support.

Research from Mind shows the Hubs are helping people reduce psychological distress and feel significantly less sad, nervous and restless.

Ms Hall said Mind staff at the Hubs are helping people in the region who are struggling for a variety of reasons, including housing insecurity, financial stressors, social isolation, and inability to purchase food.

"The Hubs are making a real difference in the Gippsland region and are removing a lot of the barriers to a very complex system", Ms Hall said.

"Typically, people have had to be significantly unwell or need a diagnosis before they can access mental health services, but people in Gippsland can access the Hubs directly for varying levels of psychological distress".

"In Gippsland we have been providing one-on-one support over the phone and face-to-face in the community. We also host group sessions so that people experiencing mental health and wellbeing concerns can connect with others in a safe, supportive environment."

Mind Hubs Lead Practitioner for Gippsland, Donna Hall, will be a guest speaker at the Leongatha Men's Shed on June 30, 2023.

All men from the South

Gippsland and Bass Coast Shires are welcome to attend this informative session with barbecue lunch provided at no cost.

Help yourself, your mates, and other local men understand that support is available should it be required.

Commences at 10.00am at the Leongatha Mens Shed, 9 Wild Dog Valley Road, Friday, June 30.

15 objections now needed for planning applications

PLANNING applications with 15 or more objections will be referred for a council decision instead of five as part of a review.

While applications costing less than $5M will be able to be determined by a council officer instead of $3M.

A review of instruments of delegation to council, which was adopted at Bass Coast shire's May meeting, has included:

- Increasing officer delegation condition to determine planning permit applications where the cost of works is less than $5 million (increased from $3 million);
- Increasing officer delegation condition to determine applications where 15 or more objections have been received (increased from 5 objections); and
- Affording officers delegation condition to negotiate outcomes through Victorian Civil and Administrative Tribunal processes where a decision was initially made by Council (currently these matters are presented back to Council for consideration).

According to shire documents, the purpose of the review was to 'remove processes that do not contribute to improved decision making' and 'ensure that applications of significant community interest

Planning applications with 15 or more objections could be referred to council instead of the previous threshold of five. ns025222 are dealt with by Council'. For the 2022/23 YTD, the shire has received 230 planning applications, with 79 per cent determined within the 60-day statutory timeframe, with more than 600 received in the previous year.

Councillors will be notified of planning applications on a fortnightly basis, receiving a list of all new applications received. This will include a brief description of the application and applications that generate significant community interest (15 or more objections).

A monthly councillor briefing will also be provided to query an application.

However, the review also states that 'calls up' should not be common practice, which is a when one or more councillors request in writing that a 'delegate not exercise delegation'.

Speaking at the shire's May meeting, Cr Bruce Kent stated it was an 'operational decision' and receives complaints from builders and developers that "we don't move along fast enough".

He added that councillors will still be able to call in different projects if contacted by the community and that the review was a great improvement to the planning department.

VEC drops flag on council elections

AND so, it begins... Residents and ratepayers will soon be asked to consider how well their councillors have performed in the last three to four years with the process, heading into the 2024 local government elections, now underway.

The Victorian Electoral Commission has advised this week that it is looking to recruit "election managers" to organise elections across Victoria, principally targeting both North-western Melbourne metropolitan areas as well as Northern and Western Victorian regions.

But their statement this week is the first sign that the long lead up to the October 2024 elections has started.

Voters in both South Gippsland and Bass Coast will be among those asked to elect a council for the next four years.

Applications for election managers' jobs are open until Friday, July 14, with more information available at vec.vic.gov.au/jobs.

Housing inquiry

THE Legislative Council's Legal and Social Issues Committee is seeking submissions to its inquiry into the rental and housing affordability crisis in Victoria.

Submissions close on July 7.

The Committee intends to table its final report, including recommendations, to the Victorian Parliament by November 17, 2023.

Leongatha Early Learning Centre springs to life

LEONGATHA Early Learning Centre (ELC) is officially open, with community members, kinder attendees, parents, staff, South Gippsland Shire councillors and State Government representatives on hand to welcome the long-awaited occasion.

Challenges in obtaining materials and staffing issues affecting the construction industry substantially delayed the expected completion date of the project, but those present at the opening were delighted with the finished facility.

The ELC is managed by the long-running Leongatha Children's Centre Incorporated, which operates nearby, and will cater to kindergarten students as well as babies and toddlers.

The Children's Centre director Paula Holt has been part of the organisation for 22 years, originally working in the kindergarten before moving into her present role, and is delighted to have the ELC in service to help meet increased demand for kindergarten and childcare places.

"We offer free kindergarten for three- and four-year-olds, this year or for 2024, she said.

The Victorian Government now subsidises three-year-old kinder, with a commitment to double the weekly hours of four-year-old kinder from 15 per child to 30 by 2027.

"Every family deserves access to high quality affordable kinder," Parliamentary Secretary for Early Childhood Katie Hall said to her audience during the ELC's official opening.

"I see a lot of kindergartens and this is a magnificent centre," she told the Sentinel-Times after joining other attendees on a tour of the facilities.

Katie said that boosting kindergarten opportunities and hours is a positive for children and parents, stressing early years learning is as important as school and that while young learners enjoy those benefits, parents will have greater freedom to return to work.

Katie was particularly impressed with the thoughtful design of the 'sleeping room', with one youngster already taking advantage of the calm space.

In contrast, the ELC features bright, vibrant play spaces with toys and activities keeping young minds active.

Plenty of three-year-old kinder participants were on hand during the opening, enjoying the generous indoor and outdoor play spaces, with teachers and educators on hand to ensure safe and stimulating play.

While a couple of the three-year-old kinder brigade in Elsie and Helena were among those enjoying table-based activities inside, Arlo and Ruben put their energy into shovelling sand into small vehicles outside.

General board member Pip Littlejohn is delighted to see the ELC open, also being the mother of Millie and Henry O'Halloran who will soon both be at the centre.

Eight-month-old Henry starts in the baby section of the ELC in September, with two-and-a-half-year-old Millie joining three-year-old kinder at the centre next year.

"We're so excited and there's been a lot of hard work from Paula and her team," Pip said, also noting the committed efforts of those at South Gippsland Shire Council.

Coordinator of the ELC, Maddie Dowel, is currently working through a childcare waiting list, with the new centre to prove crucial in accommodating many more families.

Services will continue to expand over the next few years.

Upper house member for Eastern Victoria Tom McIntosh spoke of the importance of setting up the next generation academically and emotionally.

"Not only for the kids but for the staff and educators, this is a building that you all deserve," Tom said.

Mayor Nathan Hersey spoke of the increased popularity of South Gippsland Shire as people realise it is a great place to live, with those moving from areas such as Melbourne boosting the number of kindergarten and childcare places needed, a demand the ELC will help meet locally.

He thanked the Victorian Government for its contribution of $2.37 million that helped make the much-needed project a reality, with council contributing around $3 million.

Parents are encouraged to call 5662 3533 to enquire about kindergarten places and childcare services.

Design and building inspiration behind Earl Learning Centre

AMONG the enthusiastic people at Wednesday's official opening of the Leongatha Early Learning Centre (ELC) were its builder Alex Kubale and architect Geoff Lavender, both pleased to see the facility they helped create serving the local community.

Alex of Kubale Constructions in Warragul described the project as "an enjoyable and interesting build".

He said the building's design, curvature and finishes all added to the positive experience, describing it as a "detailed build" and his largest at the time.

A lot of effort went into the 16-month project, with industry-wide building material price increases and staff shortages presenting challenges.

The wait was clearly worth it for the delighted attendees, with a mixture of staff, parents, kids South Gippsland

Shire councillors and State Government representatives appreciating what the new centre has to offer.

Geoff of Centrum Architects in South Yarra spoke of his design philosophy for the building in order to make it a welcoming place.

"It's about getting light into all the rooms and creating something more interesting for the kids," he said.

Geoff explained he was involved in the building's progress throughout its construction, being delighted with the outcome.

"It's about the end users and making sure they're all happy with it," he said of the children, staff and parents who will benefit from the new building.

Builder Alex is also proud of the completed ELC.

"It's a great feeling and good to finish off a project so well," he said.

Alex Kubale (Kubale Constructions) and Geoff Lavender (Centrum Architects) played major roles in the creation of the attractive, functional and much needed new Leongatha Early Learning Centre. A13_2423

Inverloch sewer upgrades commence this week

SOUTH Gippsland Water has announced the commencement of the much-anticipated sewer upgrades at Veronica Street.

As part of a program of investment of $12.8 million over the next five years, the Inverloch Sewer upgrades will ensure the maintenance of high-quality, safe wastewater services.

Following the successful works to date at Lindsey Close, including bulk excavation and installation of emergency storage tanks, gravity sewer and pumping station, we are excited to officially kick off the project at the Veronica Street site this week.

According to Robert Murphy, Managing Director of South Gippsland Water this upgrade, which includes two new pump stations, is a significant investment in Inverloch and will make a real difference to the town's systems.

"We are committed to enhancing the infrastructure of Inverloch to meet the needs of its growing population."

"Over the next months, our contractor, Delplant, will be first installing the new pumping station near the current one and then installing connecting sewer pipelines.

"You may notice construction equipment and vehicles and observe our groundwater pumping to stabilise the excavation.

"While this phase may involve some noise and vibrations, we assure residents that we will strictly operate between 7 am and 4 pm, with no works scheduled for weekends or public holidays" he said.

To ensure effective communication with our valued neighbours, South Gippsland Water will continue to provide regular updates through door-knocks and letter drops.

For customers who wish to stay informed about community consultation and the upcoming revegetation process, please email media@sgwater.com.au to be placed on the revegetation registrar.

Isle of Wight proposal out for feedback

THE community can now have their say on the new Isle of Wight site at 9-10 The Esplanade, Cowes, with the planning application now live on the shire's website.

The new proposal is due to be presented to council in mid-2023, with a proposed timeline to commence construction late 2023, and a grand opening of late 2025 (all subject to planning approval).

The project is a joint venture between Salta Properties, Tabet Development Group and Moda.

The plans are inclusive of a 163-room hotel, suitable for 250 workers in the peak season and 150 full time all year round.

Construction would include a multi-building development with a maximum overall height of seven-storeys.

This includes a residential hotel, residential building, retail premises and a recreation facility.

The ground floor plan features an alfresco beer garden on the corner of Bass Avenue and the Boulevard, while the 'hotel' accommodates three pub/restaurant and dining areas.

Plans include 197 car parking spaces across the development as well as 36 public bicycle parking spaces and three electric car charging stations.

Two vehicular access points are proposed:

- An internal laneway will be constructed to be accessed from Bass Avenue and will operate one-way westbound. It will only cater for drop off and check in activity associated with the hotel. Vehicles dropping guests off are provided with a connection to the public car park at the rear and through to Bass Avenue. Guests checking in can proceed through to the car park after check-in.
- A car park connection is also provided directly to Bass Avenue

The proposed development is located on land that was previously occupied by the Isle of Wight Hotel, which burnt down in 2010 and has been vacant since that time.

To have your say, visit <https://engage.basscoast.vic.gov.au/230034>

BE READY FOR THE CONVERSATION.

What's the Voice referendum about?

It's about whether we should change the Constitution to recognise the First Peoples of Australia by setting up an Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander Voice. A referendum is the only way to change the Australian Constitution.

What is the Voice?

The Voice would be a permanent body that gives independent advice to the Australian Parliament and Government on matters that affect First Nations people.

The Voice aims to help the Parliament and Government to make better decisions and deliver better outcomes for First Nations people.

How will the Voice be set up?

How it's set up would be determined after the referendum with input from First Nations people, the broader public and the Government. The Parliament would then make a law to set up the Voice.

The intention is that its members will be chosen by and representative of, Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander people from across Australia.

Lisa and Daniel Parker are grateful for the vital relationship they have with Burra Foods.

It's all about relationships

FOR Daniel and Lisa Parker of Parker Farm at Shady Creek, Burra Foods has a proven track record of valuing their suppliers ensuring they are treated like family.

The farm was originally used for beef by Daniel's parents but was eventually converted to dairy.

For Lisa, who transitioned from a professional career back to farming, she feels incredibly lucky to be in the industry.

"I don't know why I didn't start off in farming to be honest!" she said.

"It's just one of those things that's in your blood.

"When you have days like this, you can look over your farm and property and realise how amazing and lucky it is to have this little pocket of the world that's all yours."

The Parkers described their relationship with Burra Foods as like a family.

"You go to their Christmas functions and they're inclusive, the milk supply officers care and ring you straight back," Lisa said.

"They're not necessarily about being on a 'world stage'.

"They look after their suppliers because without them, it's just a heap of stainless steel in an empty factory.

"And they're local, they employ local people."

They also highlighted there's many suppliers that have been with Burra Foods for most of their working career, which is always a great sign.

Works for Leongatha and Korumburra precincts advance

DESIGN work for a pedestrian bridge to connect the car park in the Leongatha rail yard area to the shopping precinct is almost complete, following the awarding of a contract for the job.

With the lower section of the carpark having asphalt laid, bollards installed, trees planted and lights erected around the area, including along the nearby rail trail, the upper section adjacent to Apex Park will soon be asphalted, a South Gippsland Shire council spokesperson said.

The lower section of the carpark includes long vehicle parking.

One of the buildings backing onto the rail precinct will be enlivened with an artistic touch, following an expression of interest process for those wanting to create a mural, with that process now closed.

Over 30 applications were received.

They will be shortlisted in coming weeks, with community members then invited to vote for their favourite concept.

While plans for a skate park in the Korumburra railway area are still on hold as council awaits approval from Heritage Victoria in relation to the removal of railway infrastructure, works on a new car park in the vicinity will start soon.

Just as in Leongatha, suitably qualified artists will be called on to undertake a mural project in Korumburra, this time in the rail underpass, with an expression of interest process to be advertised shortly.

Get a feel for Korumburra Business Association committee

KORUMBURRA Business Association is offering the chance to join its committee on a come-and-try basis, with a couple of committee positions needing to be filled for the few months leading up to this year's AGM.

The organisation's secretary Noeline Cosson expressed her appreciation for departing treasurer Jess Paul and her contribution over the past 18 months, with Jess' position one of those available.

"Anyone wanting to join the committee now and see how it operates can do so before they decide on committing to a full year at the AGM," Noeline said.

Tom McIntosh pays a visit to Leongatha Secondary College

UPPER House member for Eastern Victoria Tom McIntosh visited Leongatha Secondary College last week enjoying a tour of the school and chatting with principal Brad Hutchinson and school captain Chloe Goff about the school's future.

That follows last year's $11.7 million election commitment to upgrade and modernise the school and the recent budget allocation of a portion of that through the School Upgrades Delivery Fund to set the wheels in motion.

Initial funding will help the school develop a project plan that will be submitted by mid July, Brad said recently.

The principal attended a meeting and workshop with the Victorian School Building Authority (VSBA) at the end of May.

"The VSBA is helping to guide us through the development of our initial 5-year plan which will then help to inform our planning and design stages," Brad said.

He made it clear the community will also play a major role in determining the school's future direction.

"We are commencing the initial phases of engaging with our community and are focused on hearing about the educational opportunities that they feel could exist in the future," the principal said.

During Tom's visit to the school, Brad spoke of the difference the government's investment will make, also hearing some interesting feedback from the minister.

"We heard from him about other schools that had recently, or are currently engaged in, completing school upgrades and it was helpful to hear about a few schools that have sought input from community groups about how their upgrades are supporting community access to spaces, resources and amenities," Brad said.

"We will be looking to speak with these schools in the coming weeks to learn from them about their journey."

Funding boost for Leongatha Community House

LEONGATHA Community House (LCH) staff and participants celebrated a valuable injection of funds with upper house member for Eastern Victoria Tom McIntosh joining the festivities after the State Government committed $50,000 to LCH.

Originally a commitment during last year's election campaign, delivered by Legislative Council representative for Eastern Victoria Harriet Shing and then Labor candidate for Gippsland South Denise Ryan, the promised funding was included in the recent State Budget.

Toni Halloran-Lavelle looks after Gippsland's 21 Community Houses in her role as network manager and spoke of the positive message the funding sends in addition to the help it will provide LCH in running its programs.

"I think it's just in recognition of what Neighbourhood Houses do for local communities," she said.

LCH manager Nina Kane is thrilled to receive the funding as she continues to develop new activities and projects for the community.

She mentioned the desire to find a suitable yoga space that can accommodate sufficient participants is one of her current goals.

Current LCH vice president Antoinette Daniel moved to Leongatha from Cranbourne five or six years ago and quickly found her way to the Community House through a 'Welcome to Leongatha' coffee morning.

She's enjoyed craft sessions and exercise classes, having now also started a newsletter, and has made many friends through LCH.

That connection between people, through tackling projects together, is something Tom noted in his speech to those present, stressing the importance of supporting service provision and expansion at LCH and other such centres.

"I'm a massive fan of Community Houses," Tom said.

He suggested the funding may be used in a variety of ways, whether helping to foster further connectivity, running health and welfare initiatives, or helping people build their skills.

Tom spoke of the pride and enjoyment people get from being a part of Community House programs, whether as an instructor or participant.

Roy Fisher draws on his experience as a professional photographer, running photography courses at LCH, loving the camaraderie and friendships he has made doing so.

During his speech, Tom noted the happy vibe in the room, adding he wishes every event he attends had the same feel.

Thanks to an extra $50,000 that vibe will now extend a little further.

Observe World Refugee Day in Bass Coast

WORLD Refugee Week is coming soon and as a community committed to supporting refugees, Bass Coast is hosting a number of events and activities. South Gippsland Rural Australians for Refugees is showing the film 'For Sama' on Sunday June 25.

In addition, on June 20, which has been declared by the UN as World Refugee Day, the Bass Coast Refugee Sponsorship Group is showing the film: 'humanKIND'. This film is about how the Group prepared, welcomed and is continuing to support a Syrian refugee family of mum, dad and four children as they settle into their new life in Wonthaggi. The film was launched in May, here in Wonthaggi, by the Federal Minister for Immigration, Citizenship and Multicultural Affairs, Andrew Giles.

Seats were limited for this event and so by popular demand it is being shown in a larger venue – the Baptist Church on the corner of McBride Ave and Broome Cres. The film will commence at 7 pm and if you are intending to attend you can rsvp to bcrrsg2021@gmail.com

Is a cardiac or respiratory condition impacting your life?

ARE you living with a cardiac or respiratory condition and want a better quality of life? Bass Coast Health (BCH) would like to tell you about our Cardiopulmonary programs. Karen Billman is our Clinical Nurse Specialist who oversees our Cardiopulmonary programs that help people with cardiac and respiratory conditions make the most of their lives.

BCH provides this service for people aged under 65 (under 50 years for Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islanders) through the Home and Community Care Program for Younger People (HACC PYP). BCH also provides this service for people aged over 65. Our Cardiac Rehabilitation supervised program helps people to recover from a heart event or diagnosis, as well as people with high blood pressure or cholesterol.

This service entails an individual assessment and then eight group exercise and eight group education sessions to improve your health and wellbeing, and reduce the risk of future heart problems. Exercise sessions are held at Wonthaggi YMCA and Phillip Island Health Hub. Client Don Bruce said the YMCA class was "good value".

"You go through a major health incident and then you come here and realise that others have been through the same thing. It makes you feel like you're not alone," he said. "I came here on a walker and look at me now. The staff just give you so much guidance." Our Pulmonary Rehabilitation program includes eight weeks of supervised exercise sessions and education classes for people with chronic lung conditions.

Clinical Nurse Specialist Karen Billman advises Don Bruce about his exercise routine during the Cardiopulmonary group at Wonthaggi YMCA.

The programs help people understand their condition and how to live and breathe better, and stay out of hospital. The exercise program improves patients' stamina, strength and endurance. Sessions are at Phillip Island Health Hub and Wonthaggi Hospital. Our Respiratory Health Team offers personal consultations about lung conditions. Counselling to stop smoking is delivered by our clinical nurse consultants, providing personal advice and assistance tailored to clients' needs. We also have a Pulmonary Support Group for people living with breathing conditions, running from Wonthaggi and Cowes. If you're overweight and aged over 45, you could be at serious risk of diabetes, heart disease and stroke. Our Life! Program will help you learn about healthy behaviours. To take part, phone 5671 3343 or email: karen.billman@basscoasthealth.org.au To join these programs, a referral from a doctor or other health professional is preferred but you can refer yourself or a family member. Send referrals to Access@basscoasthealth.org.au or fax 9102 5307 or phone 5671 3333.

Colder months can amplify symptoms of Dry Eye Syndrome

DRY eye occurs when there is insufficient production or imbalance of any of the components in the tear film, leading to ocular discomfort. Apart from the feeling of dryness, the symptoms of dry eyes can include:

- Gritty, stinging or watery eyes
- Intermittent blurred vision that is relieved through blinking
- Foreign body sensation
- Light sensitivity

Many people don't associate watery eyes with Dry Eye! It makes sense, how can you have dry eyes when they feel the opposite? If you are experiencing any of the above symptoms, book an eye exam with one of our optometrists and let us help you find the right treatment and solution to alleviate your discomfort. All of our treatments are gentle, non-invasive and can provide you with instant long-lasting relief.

At Leongatha Optometrists we have a special interest in the treatment of Dry Eye and our non invasive Blephasteam treatments can significantly reduce the symptoms of Dry Eye, providing you with instant relief. # Relocation for heritage listed clerk's bench at court house

A PLANNING application for the Wonthaggi Court House has been lodged with Heritage Victoria for 'removal of significant Deputy Clerk's bench to onsite storage room, demolition of original stepped platform, and installation of larger scale replica bench'.

More specifically, the proposal includes:

- Record, label and relocate existing Deputy Clerk's bench to 01.07 store-room.
- Demolish stepped platform and makegood flooring and carpet to match existing.
- Installation of a new free standing Deputy Clerk's bench to match existing courtroom furniture.

According to Architectural Plans submitted with Heritage Victoria, a pre application site visit was undertaken in February 2023, with pre application advice issued by a Permits Officer regarding an early proposal to adapt the existing Deputy Clerk's bench to suit the OH&S and accessibility requirements of the working Court House.

The advice noted an overall discomfort in the modification of the heritage fabric, with Heritage Officers having 'serious concerns' regarding the alterations to the clerk's bench and want to achieve the lowest impact outcome possible.

It was concluded that the proposed storage of the original and existing Deputy Clerk's desk and replacement with a new fit for purpose desk is essential for original and ensuring use of the Wonthaggi Court House, and will have no adverse impact on the places noted of cultural heritage significance.

The application states The Wonthaggi Court House is a unique and essentially intact example of a 'Georgian Revival Style Court House designed and constructed during the inter-war period'.

'Its simplified and refined classicism is characteristic of the Georgian Revival style during the inter-war period.'

'The Wonthaggi Court House also demonstrates the popularity of the Georgian Revival style which was employed on a range of buildings including the Emily MacPherson College of Domestic Economy, also designed by E Evan Smith, which won the Royal Victorian Institute Architects Street Architecture Medal in 1930.'

Submissions close on Tuesday, June 20, and the permit can be viewed at www.heritage.vic.gov.au/protecting-our-heritage/currently-advertised-permits.

Employment pathways for the future

THE South Gippsland Bass Coast Local Learning & Employment Network held their inaugural careers expo at the Korumburra Recreation Reserve last Tuesday, providing education and training possibilities for the next generation of secondary graduates.

This year, Year 9 and 10 students of South Gippsland were encouraged to explore their passions and skills to assist them in selecting their electives for the years ahead.

Motivational speakers from Success Integrated opened the event to inspire the students and get their minds thinking of where their future could possibly lead them.

The students were then welcomed to wander and engage with employers at the expo. In attendance were South Gippsland Council, Bass Coast Health, South Gippsland Water, Victoria Defence Force, Star of the South – providing career guides for offshore opportunities, Carinya Aged Care, Auddino First National, and Ambulance Victoria, plus many more.

The team at LLEN said this expo was the first of its kind for the regional schools; welcoming Korumburra Secondary College, Leongatha Secondary College, Chairo, Village High School, Mary MacKillop, and Foster. With the hope to continue this influential day in the future.

Community seek medical services, food diversity

HEALTH and food dominated the priorities in the recent 'new commerce' survey conducted by the Tarwin Lower-Venus Bay Tourism & Local Commerce Association (TALC).

The clear preference nominated by residents was the need for a fulltime doctor, followed by a bakery, hairdresser, and a variety of Asian food.

Further eateries, a laundry, childcare facilities and a gym were other community wishes.

The survey was conducted during May, with 160 submissions received.

TALC president Bruce Leonard said some outcomes were unexpected while others were anticipated.

"When you consider the demographics of the two towns, it was not unexpected that the need for a doctor rated so highly but it was a little surprising that food options figured as highly as they did," Bruce said.

He explained that given Tarwin Lower and Venus Bay between them already offer the Cavity restaurant, a pub, two cafes, the General Store, IGA, and specialty fish and chip and pizza shops, the prominence of food-related aspirations in the survey suggests residents are seeking more diverse options.

Bruce said the more than 50 commerce ideas put forward by survey respondents is reflective of the broad range of people in the two communities, saying the abundance of suggestions also demonstrates that respondents gave serious consideration to their responses.

"Well, most did, with one mischievous person suggesting a strip club," he said without dobbing anyone in.

TALC members will now work with the South Gippsland Shire Council to determine which businesses are likely to be the most feasible and financially viable.

Festival illuminates Coal Creek's beauty

THE dazzling Korumburra Southern Lights Festival returned to the town on Sunday.

This year held at Coal Creek Community Park and Museum, the event was fully booked out with 5000 people coming along to enjoy the evening.

Since Sunday, social media has lit up with positive feedback about the event and the organisers were thrilled with the turnout.

"We've seen a lot of people really keen to share their photos and their experience. It's been overwhelmingly positive, and we really appreciate the feedback we've received," event organiser Shirley Arestia said.

"Overall, I think everyone had a great time. Everything seemed to come together well and there was a great vibe from the crowd."

Entertainment on the night included two stages.

The rotunda stage featured a performance from popular children's group the Mik Maks, which was well received by the festival's youngest attendees.

Over on the main stage, festival goers were entertained by Brendan and Starbrina before South Gippsland Shire Council mayor Cr Nathan Hersey and Cr Jenni Keerie conducted the official lighting of the bonfire.

The crowd was also wowed by fire twirlers, illuminated puppets and neon light performers.

Shirley said a highlight for many was getting to see the Coal Creek buildings lit up from the inside.

"A lot of people enjoyed looking through the windows at the historical artifacts. It looked very pretty all lit up and it was great to see people interested in the history behind Coal Creek," she said.

Shirley thanked Coal Creek team leader Kim O'Connell, who was instrumental in the success of the festival.

"Kim provided incredible support and really took the festival to the next level," she said.

"We are also thankful to council. In addition to funding, council has been supportive in assisting us with paperwork, traffic management and volunteers. The staff really stepped up and were incredible."

Appreciation was also extended to the food vendors, market stallholders and entertainers for contributing to a wonderful event.

The Lights Festival was fully booked with upto 5000 people in attendance.

Wonthaggi's Clare and Ryla Guilford, and Korumburra's Bonnie and Lily Unthank attended the Korumburra Southern Lights Festival on Sunday.

Crowd gathers for Loch Food and Wine Festival

MORE than 3000 people enjoyed the delights of the Loch Food and Wine Festival on Sunday.

With a record number of vendors and beautiful weather, the scene was set for an enjoyable event.

"It was an excellent day. We had a nice crowd and a great variety of food and beverages. Many of the vendors have booked again for next year, so that's a wonderful sign," event organiser Howard Booth said.

"We will be passing on the postcodes to (South Gippsland Shire) council, but it was good to see a lot of Melbourne folk and people from across Gippsland out enjoying the day."

Mr Booth thanked the 30 volunteers who ensured the success of the event.

The Loch Community Development

Association, Loch Memorial Reserve and the Strzelecki Lions Club were represented amongst the volunteers.

These group have given wonderful support to the Loch Food and Wine Festival for many years.

"We couldn't do it without them," he said.

"It's been great to see the event continue to grow – it's good for the region. I understand there were a lot of accommodation bookings as well, so that's encouraging for our economy."

Although the festival is over, Loch is still hosting council's ArtCubes initiative.

The creative project is one more reason to visit Loch and will remain on display until the end of July.

Mr Booth thanked council for its ongoing support of the festival and the town.

Community contribution earns OAM

Cyril Payne

Newly named OAM recipient Cyril Payne takes a moment during his busy day as a Justice of the Peace.

LEONGATHA'S Cyril Payne is honoured to be named a recipient of the Medal of the Order of Australia (OAM) for his services to the community through a range of roles, with that service continuing as he gets set for his 88th year of life.

Cyril was again busy on Thursday, acting as a Justice of the Peace at the Leongatha RSL Annexe, helping community members who needed forms verified or signed.

His motivation for continuing that role is the same as that which has driven all his community involvement.

"Everything I've done, I've done because I like meeting people," Cyril said.

Raised as a Salvo in Britain, he is still strongly committed to Christianity and its values as the chaplain of Leongatha RSL.

Along with his wife Rosemary, Cyril was a divisional envoy for The Salvation Army from the mid 1990s until 2005, serving Emerald and Sale, and also worked as a preacher for the Uniting Church from 2003 until a couple of years ago.

Respect, commitment and care are the values that draw Cyril to Christianity, and he is sad to see many schools move away from religious instruction, whether that be Christianity or other religions.

Brass music has been a huge part of Cyril's life and he only gave up playing last Christmas after more than 80 years of involvement.

He was adept with all brass instruments, principally cornet and trombone, but spent much of his time conducting brass bands.

Cyril took charge of famous brass bands in the United Kingdom, Creswell Colliery, Wingate Grange Colliery and Crookhall Colliery.

He and Rosemary moved to Australia in 1980 when Cyril was offered a teaching position at Mentone Boys Grammar School, and he became conductor of the highly regarded Malvern Municipal Band.

While much of his focus was on conducting, Cyril continued to find opportunities to play with Salvation Army bands.

During the period when he and Rosemary lived in Moe, he founded the RSL Brass Ensemble in the year 2000.

That sprang out of his role as bugler for the local RSL.

Cyril had long had links with the RSL through his music, but it was in Moe that he became a member of the organisation, having served with the Royal Air Force in Britain.

His involvement with the RSL endured when he and Rosemary moved to Drouin and on to Leongatha.

Having been in Leongatha for six years, Cyril only stepped away from the local RSL committee at the last AGM.

His time working at the BBC gave Cyril a love for radio, something he combined with his passion for Christianity after moving to Australia.

That started with Gippsland FM, with Cyril presenting a Christian program that included playing hymns and chatting to people about their love of particular hymns as well as delivering Christian messages.

Such was the show's popularity, episodes were produced from 1997 until 2012.

Cyril also took to the airwaves through Life FM, being a presenter there from 2010 until 2014.

His generous Christian spirit has been a comfort to many, including some who were in their last moments of life and called on Cyril to be with them.

Cyril continues to play an active part in Anzac Day Services and other commemorative events at the Leongatha Memorial Hall.

His reaction to being named to receive the OAM was similar to most who are honoured for their community involvement.

"It's a great privilege and a surprise," Cyril said, adding that it wasn't something he sought.

"I just enjoy doing what I do," Cyril said of the efforts for which he has been recognised.

Freemans grow food, connect and conserve

Gilbert Freeman
Dr. Meredith Freeman

Gilbert Freeman and Dr Meredith Freeman who got the native bush food movement off the ground locally and brought Grow Lightly Connect to the area, have received an OAM for their service to conservation and the environment.

GILBERT Freeman and Dr Meredith Freeman brought a fresh, locally grown, native and organic food movement to South Gippsland and the Bass Coast well before it was considered a trend.

Their tireless and innovative work with food for over 25 years has earned the couple an OAM for service to conservation and the environment.

"It is good to know that this work is being recognised as significant," Meredith said.

"We're very privileged to have been able to live a life that has allowed us to be able to follow our noses and think of projects and then go ahead and work on them. It's been a privilege and doing it together and with a lot of lovely friends and the communities around us."

Moving to Kardella in the 90s after raising three sons in Melbourne and working primarily in education, and with an interest in permaculture, the couple came to the area to retire.

"I think all our lives we've had an interest in conservation and in the environment and then when we came down here 25 years ago ostensibly to retire, I suppose, which is a bit funny really," said Meredith.

The couple found themselves with the space to experiment with growing different varieties of plants on what was an old dairy farm. This opportunity fuelled their interest, and they became part of the Southern Bushfood Association.

"We became involved in growing bush food here, growing Australian native food plants. That came before the organic fruit and vegetable project, that was the first thing".

The couple subsequently set up a local bush food association, called the Prom Country Bushfoods Association.

"It brought together a number of people who were interested in Australian native food plants and incorporating them into their farm management," Meredith said.

Gil and Meredith then started Grow Lightly Connect, which is now incorporated, but started out as a simple project within their community.

"It was just a loose arrangement with friends to collect locally grown, organically grown fruit and vegetables and distribute it to local people, because it was very hard back then, even twenty-five years ago, for people in South Gippsland to get food that was grown in South Gippsland. It all went back to Melbourne," said Meredith.

They started packing bags with food in a friends shed and as it outgrew the space they moved to a shed in Coal Creek and then into the building, where Grow Lightly Connect now operates still within Coal Creek.

"Grow Lightly became bigger because it had a really popular remit which was about fresh food grown locally. Clean, fresh, local was our mantra and we extended into Bass Coast. We took the message down to Phillip Island and the Waterline and Wonthaggi and it became quite a big group with 40 members or so."

Gil and Meredith's work helped to establish the Australian native food industry locally and being a relatively new concept, it became established as part of the food culture in Victoria.

Many successful careers and ways of life were inspired and developed because of the couple's work and this is something they are both proud of.

"There are still people in South Gippsland who work in the Australian Native Food area," Meredith said.

"We didn't do it, but we were part of it."

Meredith has also a recently published book, A Garden Full of Useful Plants, with Gil and their granddaughter doing the illustrations.

"It's much more than a gardening book, it is reflections on the world, how it began and the Indigenous people," Gil said.

The couple's newest interest is looking back to the First Peoples' way of living to inform how we can thrive sustainably in the future.

"If you think of a theme for our lives, it is about conservation, and energy, and efficiency, and our attempts to essentially deal with the climate emergency, because that's hanging over us all and coming at us like a freight train, and we need to, everything we do, make efficiencies if we can, live simply."

PETER Dann has spent 50 years conserving, increasing and researching penguin populations on Phillip Island.

As Peter heads into an active retirement, he is being recognised for his significant service to the conservation, and the preservation of sea birds.

"It was a complete surprise I was even nominated; it was a complete honour to be nominated for the award and I'm very happy."

Peter is quick to point out his gratitude to the many people who have contributed to and been involved with his conservation efforts.

"It also gives me an opportunity to acknowledge and thank the large number of people who had a stake in the work, my family and work colleagues and university partners and citizen scientists and members of different organisations."

Peter initially put into place a number of strategies on Phillip Island to help preserve and increase penguin numbers when he realised they were in a dire state, with dramatic results.

"It was remarkable actually, almost everything we did worked, and the population was declining pretty rapidly. It was down to about eight to ten thousand breeding birds, and we did a number of things."

One of these things was to slowly eradicate the feral foxes on the island, another was buying back the housing estate on the Summerland Peninsula, and where Peter lived at the time.

"The population has since grown to be about forty thousand breeding birds, so that's very gratifying."

Peter has worked with groups, organisations and individuals on the Nature Park and notes that Phillip Island has an unusual and unique but highly successful model of conservation, which allowed them to work on projects with a sense of permanency.

"I inherited the help of a group called the Penguin Study Group which went for 50 years, and it was made up purely of citizen scientists, some of them with very professional back grounds, who just gave up their time to study penguins and give us a basis concerning the population.

"Most of the proceeds of the Nature Parks of Phillip Island goes into conservation and management of wildlife on the island. It's meant that it's been a well-resourced (until COVID) organisation and we could do things that were long term in nature."

Peter has had a bond with the Island since he was three. One of his first memories was hearing people playing table tennis outside of his bedroom window while on holidays at the Kaloha Caravan Park in Cowes.

He attributes his initial interest in natural history to his parents, and going on camps with Bird Life Australia got him particularly hooked on birds.

"I don't know quite why I bonded so closely with birds, but I do like all of nature, but it's birds that just struck a chord with me from a very early age.

"They are certainly iconic and charming creatures."

Although Peter has retired, he remains as Director of the Penguin Foundation, working with a number of students on Phillip Island in conjunction with the Nature Park and is also on a few other local conservation committees.

"The lines between work and hobbies and fun are fairly blurred," he said.

Overall, penguin populations are declining across Australia and although Peter and others have discovered that this is due to all things that are human in origin, like overfishing, pollution, and climate change, the knowledge isn't translating into sustainable action.

"We know everyone loves penguins, but we can't seem to make the connection with everyone that this thing they love is not going to be with us forever if we don't change some of the things we're doing to the world's oceans and the world's climate.

"I think this is the next challenge for us as conservationists, to get the population to put their money where their mouth is."

Medal of the Order of Australia (AM) Peter Dann

Medal of the Order of Australia (OAM) Ella Angarane

OAM for leading equality in sport

Ella Angarane was awarded with an OAM for service to women's Australian rules football.

FOUNDER, president and coach of Bass Coast Breakers Women's Football Club, Ella Angarane has been recognised for her contribution to achieving equality in grassroots football.

Ella was excited, honoured, and humbled to be awarded an OAM by her community; not working for recognition but driven by passion, Ella saw the gap in equality as a young girl who grew up wanting to be on the football field.

"I've been involved in football all my life, mum and dad were both a part of the Dalyston Football Netball Club, with dad coaching and mum volunteering behind the scenes and I always wanted to play but the opportunity wasn't there.

"In 2015 when there was a growth in girls footy, I was approached and started coaching the youth girls – aged 13 to 18 years and it was the first club for South Gippsland and Bass Coast."

At this stage a women's side wasn't up and running, and Ella still had the drive to play so she travelled to Seaford to be a part of their women's team and competed in Melbourne but there was still that spark to play local, and by 2017, Ella took it upon herself to start the Bass Coast Breakers.

"I don't strive for recognition, so this award is humbling, I just wanted to be a representative for the whole of the shire, to start an open age team. We now provide for a diverse demographic, I'm proud of the safe and inclusive space, and this means our passionate players have local opportunity."

The open age women's invites girls as young as 16 years, with the opportunity to join if they have confidence in their game. The youth team is still underway and once these girls develop their skill and certainty in the game they can move over to the women's side.

"We've developed an environment and positive culture where women are confident in competing and we've given them the opportunity to do so," said Ella.

Not only did Ella drive the creation of the club, but she continues to provide an inclusive space for women to stand up and lead, whether it be to put their hand up for the committee, or to take the next step and be part of the coaching team.

The Bass Coast Breakers manage under a shared coaching model that invites women with the opportunity to become involved – to develop the required skill to complete a level two coaching accreditation and take the next step towards equality in a male dominated sport.

"It's the community that is right behind this group, I was just the driver to get it off the ground."

With so many women involved six years on, the team is sustainable and consistent – welcoming girls that have played 50 games and 'that's a huge achievement for women's football at a local level.'

In 2018, Ella achieved a premiership and the growth in the game continues to thrive.

"Women still have a fair way to go in a male dominated space, but the future would ideally be for more girls to be coaching, playing, and feeling the confidence to take on those leadership roles.

"Thank you to the community for getting behind the game, so we can lead the way to achieve equality in sport."

Sentinel-Times COMMENT

Premier offered easy win at Wonthaggi

THERE have been some who've criticised the State Budget and moaned about the state's debt levels, but down here in Bass Coast at least, we've never had more support from the government of the day.

Hardly had the $115 million first stage of the Wonthaggi Hospital been completed, for example, than the Premier Daniel Andrews was down here, in November 2022, promising an additional $290 million for Stage 2.

The promise was backed up in the 2023-24 budget, promising "the second stage of the Wonthaggi Hospital, delivering additional capacity and a new birthing complex for families on the Bass Coast" was on the way.

And within the allocation of $320 million for six hospitals, including a new hospital for West Gippsland, is further commitment to the Wonthaggi redevelopment.

There was also $6.7 million for "modernisation" at the Wonthaggi Primary School. Thanks for that.

The reality is, however, that state finances are tight, we get that, but in the case of the Wonthaggi hospital, the clever way in which they built stage one presents the government with a unique opportunity to deliver a huge improvement, at a minimal cost, in quick time.

Already built in, as part of stage one, are two floors of empty space, with three "shells" just waiting to be fitted out as part of stage two; as a higher standard maternity wing, expanded pathology and proper-sized pharmacy.

Local MP Jordan Crugnale and the board of Bass Coast Health have already recognised the opportunity and have been openly advocating for it. And it makes good sense, given the burgeoning growth in the electorate of Bass and the need to get maximum benefit out of the budget spend.

While the other hospital projects under the $320 million package are mostly at the planning stage, there's the opportunity within this election cycle to get the first part of the Wonthaggi Hospital (stage 2) project up and going, with planning for the remainder to follow.

Mums with twins and other higher needs will be able to get the care they and their babies need at home, and Wonthaggi could be looking after 200-300 more mothers-a-year in a new maternity wing.

More room for Monash Pathology at Wonthaggi would enable a faster turnaround on tests, and the existing pharmacy is far too small for our requirements.

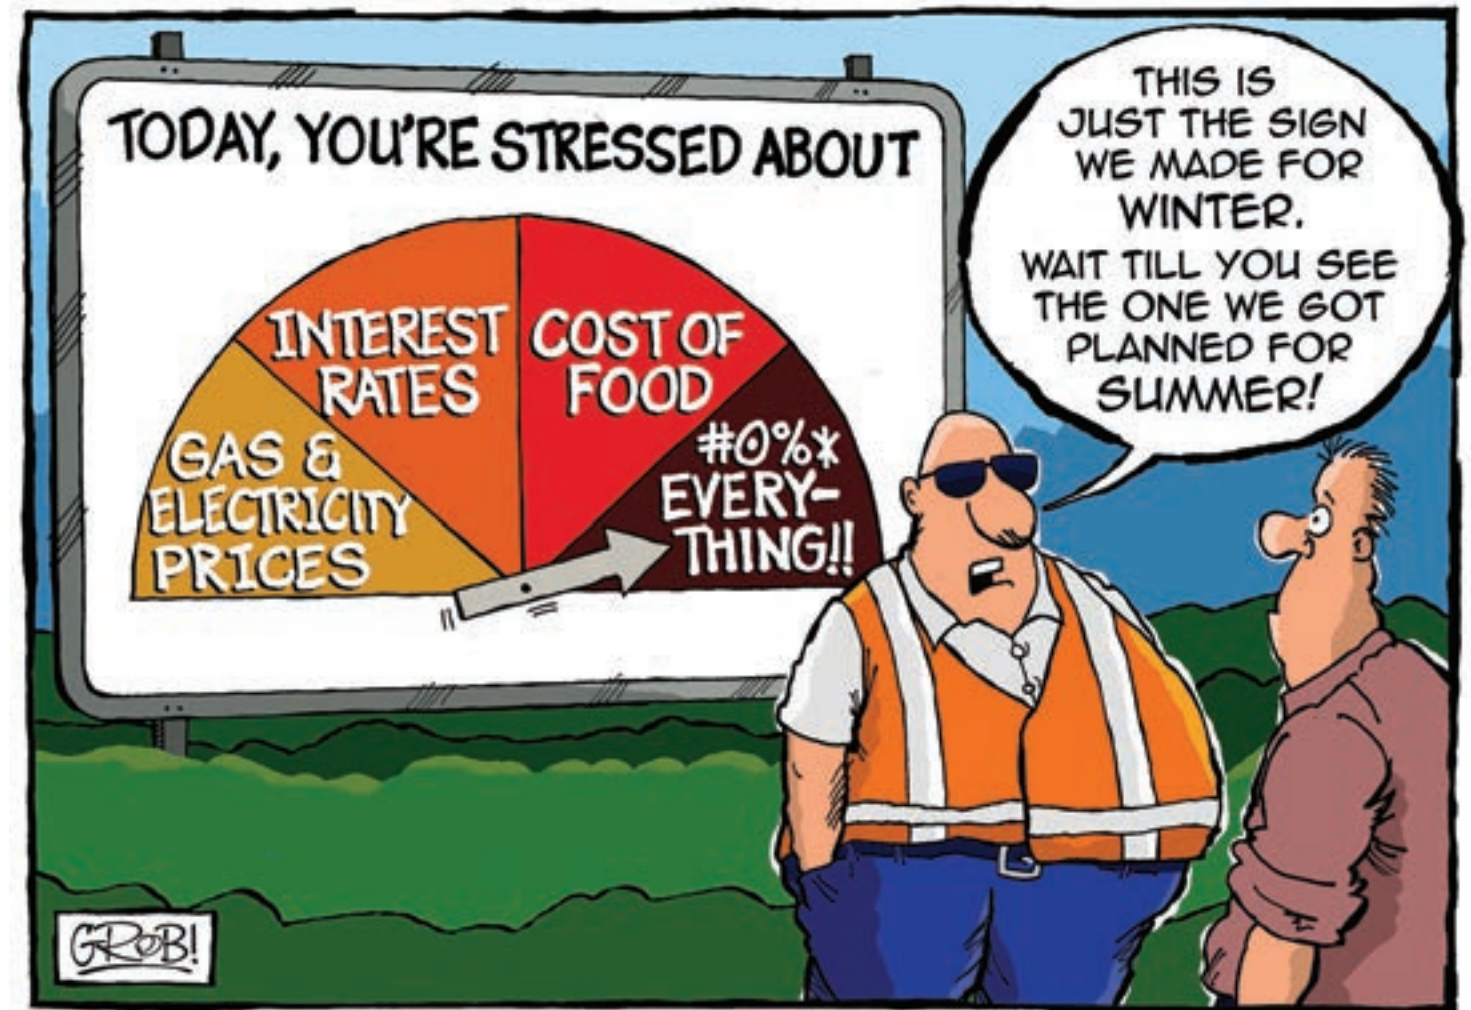

The space is already there, no bricks and mortar needed, simply a fit-out for the existing space and wham-o... a whole new era of health in Bass Coast is born.

Mr Premier, you've already delivered in spades for Bass Coast, but here, surely, would be your easiest win of all for Wonthaggi.

Voice response

Rosemary Hutchinson ('Putting the horse before the cart': letters, June 6, 2023) raises a number of issues regarding the Voice to Parliament, and I would like to reply to them.

Every referendum put to the Australian people has the same format, in presenting the words for a constitutional change which is then followed by legislation to enact the 'will of the people' and set out how the change will be implemented.

Parliament will decide on the size of membership, method of election, length of tenure, and terms of employment of the members, and what they can and can't do within the terms of giving advice to Parliament and the Executive.

If parliament were to find it unworkable, they can change the legislation. What they can't change is the fact of the Voice's existence.

A lot of work has been done in making recommendations on these factors regarding membership etc, and how it will work, but they remain recommendations only, and Parliament will decide what they accept, and what they develop further themselves.

The Indigenous Co-design Process Final Report 2021 sets out its recommendations that there will be Local and Regional Voices and they will elect the National Voice, with 2 members per state, plus 5 members for remote representation, and 1 member for Torres Strait Islanders living on mainland Australia.

There is no likelihood that members 'will be embedded for perpetuity'.

Professor Megan Davis led a lengthy and broad-ranging consultation with First Nations people, culminating in the Uluru Statement.

Ms Hutchinson misses the point about Professor Davis's consultations. She cannot set the agenda for the Voice before it meets, but at Uluru they achieved consensus on the three priorities of Voice, Treaty and Truth.

Professor Davis's comment that 'no one will be able to shut them up' refers to the fact that numerous First Nations advisory bodies have been abolished because governments haven't wanted them to remain. The Voice is unlikely to become a complaints body as much as Parliament is. Parliament question time is largely full of complaints from the Opposition (of either side) about acts of omission and commission by government. If the Voice receives complaints of merit, it can be expected that they may form a constructive basis for advice to Parliament.

The Voice's agenda will be very full. We can imagine that 'health, housing and education', and how to extend their self-determining influence in these spheres, will be high on the list of issues to tackle. Activism on these issues will be welcomed by all First Nations people who will be keenly watching and holding the Voice accountable.

The Voice without constitutional change is open to governments not taking it seriously and abandoning rather than potentially reforming it if it isn't working. I have great faith that it will work, but it is not the sole answer to First Nations empowerment. It is a step towards reconciliation, opening a new dialogue about co-existence and our shared future.

Marg Lynn, Berrys Creek

Important concerns raised

In the Sentinel of the June 6 edition, Rosemary Hutchinson raises a number of important concerns and once again I am impressed by her calm and respectful approach.

I also have struggled with why the national co-design process undertaken under Minister Wyatt during the former Coalition Government is not used as a basis for providing the detail for how a Voice would work.

But on investigation, I found that terms of reference explicitly stated that constitutional reform was out of the committee's scope.

I also have some sympathy with those who argue that the sequencing of how the reconciliation process should play out could be better.

But politics is the art of the possible and now Prime Minister Albanese took enshrining a Voice by a Referendum to the last election just as he did the Stage Three tax cuts.

If representative democracy is to work then the concept of "Say what you are going to do, then do what you say," is important.

Indeed, much of Rosemary's argument is that "We are expected to have sufficient confidence in the performance of the Federal Parliament of the day to negotiate an acceptable structure to the "Voice" after a YES vote is delivered."

I would point out that this is exactly the same process used to determine all sorts of issues including whether we go to war, in my view a far more consequential decision.

I work on the approach that our politicians of all stripes have the best interest of Australians at heart and will get most decisions largely right and if I think they aren't then my answer is to vote them out at the next election.

We still have a long way to go before the vote and I expect that some of the issues will be further ventilated before we do, so I look forward to further correspondence...

Aged Care

Kirrak House resident Mort Stuchbery enjoys the edible garden with Associate Nurse Unit Manager Deepa Ipe.

Griffiths Point Lodge Lifestyle Assistant Natasha Stapleton shares a special moment with resident Ruth Andrews.

Feel the difference at Bass Coast Health

BASS Coast Health's (BCH) residential care teams are focused on ensuring residents' needs come first.

BCH has two aged care facilities.

Kirrak House is located in Wonthaggi next to Wonthaggi Hospital and offers 30 beds.

Griffiths Point Lodge at San Remo overlooks the sea and Cape Woolamai and has 29 beds.

All residential aged care services are accredited against the Aged Care Quality Standards by the Aged Care Quality & Safety Commission.

The BCH team forms close bonds with our residents' families to ensure they are kept informed every step of the way.

"Our aged care facilities are staffed by a team of professional skilled staff, dedicated to the care of each individual care recipient. The teams are led by the Nurse Unit Manager and comprise nursing staff, diversional therapists, cleaning and catering staff," BCH CEO Jan Child said.

"All staff are committed to ensuring the recognition of the uniqueness of our residents and that residents' self-esteem, privacy and freedom of choice are valued.

"Our philosophy is to enable all care recipients to live their life with dignity and comfort whilst encouraging them to pursue their own concept of a happy, rich and fulfilling life. We also encourage family support and interaction."

Residents of Griffiths Point Lodge are enjoying renovated rooms, as part of a $1 million project that will partially renovate inside the facility.

One wing has been transformed so far, including the hallway and eight bedrooms, as part of a five-stage refurbishment works program that will see more rooms refurbished as time progresses.

A new nurse call bell system has also been installed in rooms, and all utility rooms such as linen, medication and dirty utility rooms will be refurbished during these works.

In 2022, Kirrak House passed its three yearly accreditation review by the Aged Care Quality & Safety Commission.

The assessors found the home met all of the requirements set out in the eight Aged Care Quality & Safety Standards.

The assessment team was impressed by how well staff knew residents and their needs, and the high level of care provided.

The interior of Kirrak House was refurbished in 2022, with new painting and flooring throughout, and a new nurse call system was installed.

Residents enjoy a new edible garden and fruit trees that make Kirrak House feel even more like home.

Good hearing aids offsetting dementia

RECENT research has shown an association between hearing loss and dementia, indicating hearing loss might be a potential modifiable risk factor for dementia.

Addressing hearing loss, such as through the use of hearing aids in older age people might reduce the risk of dementia.

About Bass Coast Hearing are experienced in all areas of hearing impairment, including rehabilitation, and keep up to date with the latest hearing-aid fitting technologies and the latest advances in the field.

The team at ABC Hearing offers initial testing to assess hearing and can determine if there is a problem, the extent, and lifestyle issues that may impact on hearing loss and deterioration.

They can then work to address and appropriately rehabilitate hearing loss.

When someone has a hearing loss, one of the major things it can affect is cognitive ability, and in turn may create a greater risk of getting dementia.

By improving hearing, the part of the brain that processes sound is stimulated and that's been shown to keep neural pathways more active.

The World Health Organisation rates hearing loss as being one of the top 10 medical issues, and it is one of the easiest and cheapest to rectify and quality of life overall can be dramatically improved.

Hearing aid device fittings and tests along with a free one-month trial is available from ABC Hearing.

A series of follow ups is undertaken after the fitting to ensure the client is confident using the device, that it's set up properly, comfortable to wear and has good sound quality.

This ensures the clients get off on the right foot and gain the best possible benefit from the devices.

There's no shortage of friendly smiles and faces at Rose Lodge.

Aged Care

Personal Care Assistant and nursing student Ashleigh Gringhuis is finding aged care at Leongatha's Woorayl Lodge a rewarding career, being part of a supportive team overseen by General Manager Barry Westhorpe. A22_2423

Rewarding career at Woorayl

THE FRIENDLY team at Leongatha's Woorayl Lodge are keen to welcome more nurses and Personal Care Assistants (PCA), with Ashleigh Gringhuis one young staff member establishing a rewarding career there.

She recently completed a Certificate III in Allied Health Assistance, starting that while a student at Leongatha Secondary College, and is thriving as a PCA working mostly in the memory support wing of the Lodge.

Ashleigh has long been interested in becoming a nurse.

Her enjoyment of her current role solidified that ambition and she began pursuing that pathway before she finished her Certificate III.

Ashleigh is studying towards her Diploma of Nursing through TAFE Gippsland in Leongatha and is set to complete that qualification late next year.

Working at Woorayl Lodge, Ashleigh quickly discovered she enjoys the interaction with residents and helping them.

While acknowledging not every day is a good one, she said the good far outweighs the bad.

"I love the relationships you build with the residents, their families and your team," Ashleigh said.

Observing improvement and good moments for those living at the Lodge are highlights for Ashleigh.

"When I walk in the room, seeing the residents' faces light up and having a laugh with them is important," she said.

Ashleigh finds it rewarding putting residents at ease and making their experience of care a positive.

"I've enjoyed doing what I'm doing so much I thought why not take it a step further and make as much difference as I can," Ashleigh said of her nursing ambitions, adding that seeing what nurses do is inspiring.

She said Woorayl Lodge staff work together to achieve the best outcomes for patients.

"The teamwork side of things is amazing as is communication with management," Ashleigh said.

She explained team members communicate effectively, ensuring everyone has a good understanding of what needs doing even when helping in different sections of the Lodge, and that staff are always comfortable asking management questions or raising any concerns.

Kitchen gardens serve up a treat

RESIDENTS of Gippsland Southern Health Service's (GSHS) three aged care facilities will soon be growing their own vegetables.

GSHS has secured nearly $100,000 to install new kitchen vegetable gardens at the facilities, with residents leading the way in their development.

GSHS operates three aged care facilities, Koorooman House with 36 nursing home beds on the grounds at Leongatha Hospital and Hillside Lodge with 30 hostel beds and Alchera House with 20 nursing home beds at Korumburra.

Koorooman and Hillside each received $45,000 and Alchera received $5000 from the Public Sector Residential Aged Care Service to convert some balconies to a vertical garden to make it a green space.

Koorooman will convert an unused concrete area into a raised bed vegetable garden and Hillside will put in pathways and raised garden beds in a grass area.

Director of Nursing – Korumburra, Tracey Edmonds, said it was a terrific project that would engage residents in an area of great interest.

"They will put in garden beds and plant vegetables and the produce can be used in the facilities for meals," Ms Edmonds said.

"It's all about providing residents with good activities that they want to do to enhance their quality of life," she said. "Residents set their goals and that directs the way we care for them."

Ms Edmonds said gardening was a key activity for many residents. "In our community, we have a lot of residents who have come off farms or large properties with vegetable gardens and fruit trees," she said. "It was an important part of their lives before they came to aged care so this is a meaningful activity in that they propagate their own fruit and vegetables each season and can then use them to cook like they used to."

At Koorooman, several residents already help with a bit of gardening.

"We have very limited space at the moment but being able to establish vegetable and fruit gardens that need continuous upkeep will get them outside and contribute to an improved quality of life," Ms Edmonds said.

The residents will be involved in the design and set up of the garden.

"They will tell us what they want to grow and be consulted through the whole program," Ms Edmonds said.

"It will be their garden and it will help to maintain physical skills."

The projects are expected to start in July after consultation with residents.

There are currently vacancies at Koorooman House.

People interested in finding out more can contact GSHS or visit www.myagedcare.gov.au to get the process started.

Enriching the spirit and stimulating the mind

ALL residents at Banfields Aged Care in Phillip Island receive quality care and support, with an emphasis on health and well-being and community connection.

Nursing staff provide 24-hour care based on individual care plans to help each resident feel connected with both their past and their fellow residents, and lifestyle manager Robyn Montague explained the importance of independence and socialisation.

"Residents gather frequently to participate in 'show and tell', where we all sit around in a big group and share something that each resident loves – events and items from their childhood, their families or their professional life. We try and go as far back as we can as these items can trigger memories and allow our residents to reminisce about their past."

Social programs are an essential part of aged care, with various activities helping to stimulate the mind and body, keeping residents active and enrich their lives.

"With a total of five wings across the Phillip Island facility 'Banfields Aged Care', we invite everyone from each wing to participate, including residents from the memory support unit who have endured cognitive impairment. Everyone congregates to participate in various programs – whether it be an afternoon tea served with vintage china, or an ice cream sundae served in old fashioned glass bowls, because food is powerful in evoking memories.

"Together the residents can reflect on past experiences; we also provide special entertainment, including old movies, ballroom dancing or rock n roll."

Each resident is notified of upcoming activities, with Banfields staff providing residents the opportunity to be involved and engaged in creating programs and share their experiences and thoughts with each other.

Sensory stimulation activities are a key component of the program, with smell, taste, sounds, touch and sight being central elements in bringing memories back and helping the social connections between residents.

"When we are working with people with memory loss, we include their happy memories when we are creating their care plans. Each care plan is based on individual goals, needs and preferences, created by staff with specialized expertise."

"The programs bring so much fun and enjoyment to both residents and staff", said Robyn.

The staff at Banfields receive ongoing training on dementia and Alzheimer's support - working with Dementia Australia to learn of countless strategies to assist residents with progressive loss of memory, communication, nutrition and other aspects of later stages of dementia.

Banfields offer 90 beds with 24-hour nursing care in a safe and inclusive environment, with registered nurses, enrolled nurses, personal carers and a well-established lifestyle team, supported by allied health professionals, providing quality care and services with meaning and purpose.

Aged care in Australia in a nutshell

WE ASKED ChatGPT to suggest the top 10 priorities for aged care providers in Australia? Some of the top priorities for aged care providers in Australia could include:

1. Ensuring the safety and well-being of the residents and their families.
2. Providing high-quality care that is tailored to the individual needs of each resident.
3. Maintaining a comfortable and welcoming living environment.
4. Offering a range of activities and social opportunities for residents to engage in.
5. Ensuring that residents have access to nutritious meals and dietary support.
6. Prioritizing staff training and education to improve the overall standard of care.
7. Investing in advanced technology to streamline operations and enhance care.
8. Promoting transparency and open communication with residents and their families.
9. Enhancing infection prevention and control measures to prevent outbreaks and protect vulnerable residents.
10. Advocating for changes to government policies and funding to improve the overall quality of aged care services in Australia.

Of course, according to ChatGPT the specific priorities of each aged care provider may vary depending on their unique circumstances and resident needs, and that's certainly the case at Woorayl Lodge in Leongatha where the standard of care can't be questioned, it's just that the facility is no longer fit for purpose.

• FAITH FACTOR

Many people are worried

Rev. Charles Lazaro
Wonthaggi Baptist Church

BECAUSE we are living in very uncertain days right now, people everywhere are worried about almost everything. Most of us worry about the present and the future.

We worry about our family, education, jobs, deadlines to keep, dwindling budget, increasing prices, rising cost of bills, and overall cost of living expenses.

Some are worried about their appearance, first impressions, political correctness, identity theft, picking up infections, just to name a few.

If you spend your time worrying about your problems, issues or difficulties that might or might not happen in the future; you will inevitably be driven to worrying some more.

Worry will ultimately rob us of genuine happiness. When we worry about the future, we tend to forget the good things of the present.

You will agree with me, that worrying about something always achieves nothing.

Worrying about the unknown future leads to fear, and anxiety, which is spotted by others around us. But, trusting in God who knows the past, present and the future is the best exercise to overcome worry.

Matthew in his Gospel recorded what Jesus taught the people about worrying. You can read all about it in Matthew 6:25-34. I learned over many years to obey what Jesus said in these verses, and now I trust what Jesus taught. Because it works!

Someone said, "replacing worry with prayer produces trust in God."

This reminds me of what the Apostle Paul wrote in his letter to the Philippians in chapter 4:6-7. "6 Don't worry about anything; instead, pray about everything. Tell God what you need, and thank him for all he has done. 7 Then you will experience God's peace, which exceeds anything we can understand. His peace will guard your hearts and minds as you live in Christ Jesus."

You too can trust God and leave your worries in his hands.

God alone has our future under his control.

Some of the winning artists and friends at the opening of the Corinella and District Art Show 2023.

Corinella Art Show Success

WITH more than 180 entries of paintings, sculpture and pottery from artists across the Bass Coast and wider Victoria the Corinella Art Show was once again a hit.

Held for 35 years over the Queen's (now King's) birthday long weekend and the first one of its kind in the shire, the show puts the small town of Corinella firmly on the arts world map.

"Not only does it share the skills of all our local artists, but it increases the cultural awareness of all the people in the community," Libby Skidmore, Art Show Convener for the annual exhibition and volunteer for the Corinella Community & District Centre Volunteer said.

This year's event was bigger than ever as the community group decided to combine the modern art show, usually held on the long weekend in March, with this year's June show, because of COVID.

The exhibition saw over 400 people attend and enjoy the huge range of wonderful works all the way from amateur artists to those who are internationally renowned.

Jordan Crugnale MP opened the show on Friday night and international pastel artist from Blairgowrie, Julie Goldspink judged the best in show, with prize money of $1000 donated by the local Lions Club.

Libby said the Lions Club had been extremely generous, as well as local businesses with various donations and sponsorships.

Every painting was for sale and the art show has kept the Corinella Community & District Centre afloat over the years.

The centre helps to support local people with funding going towards the food pantry and different classes.

Libby said the effort is huge and is grateful to the great work of all the volunteers that make it such a successful event.

On yer bike, says Sam

WONTHAGGI historian, Sam Gatto, unashamedly a 'senior', bought a Tebco electric-power-assisted bike five years ago and he hasn't looked back.

Riding around town to do chores or with his local bike group, on their twice-weekly tour to Kilcunda and back, he's totalled up more than 4000 kilometres.

"It's great. We ride out to Kilcunda and stop for coffee, where we solve the problems of the world, and then back into town again," said Sam.

"On days when the weather isn't quite so kind, we ride up to the Coffee Collective for a bit of a get-together.

"And being part of a group, it's much easier to get up and go."

It's good for the mind, body and soul, according to Sam, and getting around town also helps him with his present history project – writing about the streets and place names around Wonthaggi as a way to discuss aspects of Wonthaggi's history.

"It's for a book. We've got the text pretty much done. Now we're working on the photos."

It's happy days, for Sam, and he highly recommends seniors getting a bike and hitting the local rail trails.

"You've still got to pedal, you know," says Sam with a grin.

Leongatha students get a taste for TAFE Gippsland

LEONGATHA Secondary College students were given the opportunity to test out opportunities for further education, through TAFE Gippsland's Taster Days.

Year nine and 10 students from Leongatha attended the Leongatha campus and trades centre for a hands-on "taste" of what it's like to study or train through TAFE Gippsland.

TAFE Gippsland threw open its doors to its campuses all over Gippsland to more than 500 students for the day of interactive and engaging activities, showcasing all that TAFE has to offer.

TAFE Gippsland Senior Advisor – School Engagement Rhonda Noble said the aim of Taster Days was to start students thinking about careers.

"Many year nine and 10 students are still unsure of what they want to do as a career, so we try to make it a little easier for them by providing the best experience possible," she said.

"We allowed them to spend time with the professionals, our teachers, who were more than happy to share what a typical day at TAFE Gippsland could look like.

"Students were able to learn some of the creative techniques involved in visual arts, along with hands-on work around engineering, automotive, carpentry, plumping, civil construction, electrotechnology, agriculture, horticulture, animal care, health and much more!

"It's the perfect outlet to help those students who are undecided about their future with some career pathway options."

Ms Noble said the Taster Days were a great success, with schools throughout Gippsland keen to participate in the program again next year.

New research highlights worrying loneliness levels in Australian men

THE impact of loneliness on health can be as damaging as smoking, obesity and some cancers, and millions of Australian men are at risk.

This is according to new research released by Healthy Male in the lead up to Men's Health Week which is happening from Monday, June 12, to Sunday, June 18, 2023.

According to a nationally representative survey of 1,282 Australian men, conducted by Healthy Male, 43% of Australian men are lonely. High levels of loneliness were reported by more than one in six men (16%) overall.

Healthy Male CEO Simon von Saldern said the survey results added another element to the overall picture of male health in Australia.

"This survey was part of a wider study, and we were really surprised by what we saw — we asked these questions, but we were not expecting such a high level of loneliness," he said.

The picture is even bleaker in some age groups: one in four (24%) men aged 35-49 have a high level of loneliness, with a rate almost twice as high as in men aged 50-64 years (12.1%), and 3 times higher than men aged 65 and over (6.0%).

High levels of loneliness are least common for men aged 65 years and older.

The results of the survey inspired Healthy Male to tackle the issue of loneliness this Men's Health Week (Mon 12-Sun 18 June) and educate those most highly affected with key tips on what an individual can do to recognise and address loneliness.

You can learn more by visiting healthymale.org.au/mens-health-week-2023.

It's not just Australia with a men's loneliness epidemic.

The US Surgeon General has recently released a report on loneliness in the USA titled "Our Epidemic of Loneliness and Isolation":

<https://www.hhs.gov/surgeongeneral/priorities/connection/index.html>

And both Japan and Great Britain are addressing the issue with a Minister for Loneliness in the UK and the Minister for Loneliness and Isolation in Japan being appointed.

The survey also reveals a link between feeling lonely and men's health behavior.

Aside from the high prevalence of loneliness in Australian men, the study outlined further concerns.

Men with a high level of loneliness are more likely than others to have poor physical and mental health, after adjustment for variables like age, sociodemographics and relationship status.

And men with a high level of loneliness are less likely than others to have positive attitudes to preventive health behaviours, including healthy eating, disease screening and undergoing regular health checks.

50% of men who are not lonely recognise the importance of a yearly GP check-up, whereas only 35% of men who are very lonely see it as important.

Low health literacy in men is linked to loneliness.

The survey also highlighted an issue with health literacy — the ability to access and understand health information, to use information for disease prevention, or to use health services — in men experiencing loneliness.

The results showed the percentage of Australian men who can adequately find and use health information is profoundly lower in very lonely males (48.1%) compared to those with low-moderate levels of loneliness (71.6%).

"The figures are concerning. There are a lot of questions still to be answered, as we don't know how and why loneliness is affecting men's help health-seeking behaviour, so more needs to be done to investigate the issue of loneliness in Australian men," said Mr von Saldern.

Meditation in daily life

By author Claire Chitty

IT IS estimated the average person has approximately 60,000 thoughts a day with about 11,000 of these negative. That's a substantial amount of energy that can keep a person trapped in stress and anxiety, which in turn may lead to physical conditions. Meditation is beneficial in combating this by reducing blood pressure, lowering one's heart rate and supporting a better night's sleep.

Maybe for you, meditation conjures up images of individuals sitting cross legged on a yoga mat with hands in the prayer position repeating a mantra, or maybe it's holding the thumb and index fingers together and chanting 'om'.

Yet meditation is simply a natural method to accessing inner peace in a busy world, in a way that suits the individual and their lifestyle.

I hear many excuses from people - 'I can't meditate,' 'I don't have time,' 'I've tried. It doesn't work.'

Now, think of all the times when you've been captivated by a stunning sunset, stopped to marvel at a rainbow, watched ocean waves lap in and out over sand, felt the sun's rays warming your body, hiked through the bush in silence or been transported to another place through uplifting music? Remember that feeling of peace?

Congratulations, you were activating your alpha brain waves, responsible for essential rest and relaxation.

What works for one person, may not have the same result for another. Nor is there a right or wrong way. Formal meditation can be practiced either sitting or lying down on a comfortable chair / bed. It can also be normal for individuals to fall asleep, allowing the mind to recharge.

The overall aim is to let go of distracting thoughts and build greater mental clarity. To receive optimum advantage, I recommend doing this every day. Start with a few minutes daily, building up to 20 to 30 minutes. Even a quick five can have a positive impact.

Mindfulness is another meditation practice that permits thoughts to come and go without judgment. A word repeated over and over, such as 'peace' or 'relax' can be helpful in the beginning.

Maybe explore staring at an object, a candle or focusing on slowing down the breath. You may find your mind initially wanders, like a child wanting attention. Simply acknowledge any thoughts that appear and let them go. With practice, this becomes easier.

Another option is listening to a guided visualisation either in a group setting with a facilitator or through an app, such as Calm.

One final suggestion is simply do something that you love – dance, draw, journal, enjoy one of the many beautiful nature walks in the area or listen to bird song. Simply just be in the moment. Allow inner peace to enfold your physical and emotional well-being rather than rushing through life.

Bass Coast Fine Film Group presents "The Innocent"

AT 10.45am, Sunday June 18, the BCFFG is screening "The Innocent", a multi award winning film from acclaimed French writer/director, Louis Garrel, who also stars as Abel.

The film follows the story of a man named Abel, played by Garrel himself, who is convinced to participate in a heist to steal a valuable painting. Along the way, Abel falls in love with a woman named Clemence, played by Noémie Merlant (Woman on Fire), who becomes entangled in the heist. The film features a talented cast, who bring their characters to life with nuance and humour.

Overall, "The Innocent" is a charming and entertaining film that blends elements of romance, comedy, and crime.

The film explores several themes and motifs, including the nature of truth and deception, the power of love, and the consequences of one's actions.

Garrel's direction and writing create a light-hearted tone that balances the film's darker elements, resulting in a film that is both thought-provoking and enjoyable to watch. The film's use of music, particularly the recurring theme of "La Vie en Rose," adds to its whimsical and romantic atmosphere.

Additionally, the film's clever plot twists and turns keep the audience engaged and guessing until the very end.

'Celebrate Her' at Stockyard Gallery

CURRENTLY showing at Stockyard Gallery, Foster, are posters and photographs by Karli Duckett, from "Celebrate Her! Stories of South Gippsland Women", a documentary project that tells the stories of 23 women living amongst us.

A working group led by the Honourable Michelle Gordon AC, Justice of the High Court of Australia, invited the South Gippsland community to nominate women they wanted to see celebrated.

This project culminated in a published book and poster series that has since been distributed widely throughout the Shire.

The sales via donation of the book have been channelled back into the area with all proceeds going to the award-winning outreach program, "The Hub" for women and children in the Corner Inlet community.

As well as Karli's photographs, two of the celebrated women, Sue Gilford and Kerry Spokes, have their artworks in the exhibition.

All are welcome to a closing party which will be held at the Gallery on Sunday afternoon June 25, from 1:00pm to 3:00pm, when organisers will be breaking out the bubbly to mark the conclusion of the project and when Michelle Gordon will formally present Manna Gum Community House with the funds raised towards supporting their remarkable Hub Project into the future.

Gallery hours are 11 am - 3pm, Thursday - Monday.

Exciting guest for South Gippsland Singers

THE South Gippsland Singers will once again present a mixed bag of songs for your enjoyment and feature an outstanding guest artist - Claudene-Marie Adams.

"Medley of Hope" is the title they've chosen for their June 25, concert at the Dakers Centre in Leongatha, commencing at 2pm.

Songs from "Les Misérables" feature in a beautiful medley that will delight; other numbers include "Lullaby of Broadway", "Pie Jesu" and "Isle of Hope, Isle of Tears" which have proven popular in the past. The nursery rhymes - "Old Mother Hubbard", "Sing a Song of Sixpence" and "Little Jack Horner" - are performed in the style of Handel and are deliciously different!

Claudene-Marie Adams is a graduate from the WA Conservatorium of Music under the guidance of Richard Gill. She trained in performance and Pedagogy at the Conservatorium and won the most outstanding performer of the year.

While in Perth, Claudene-Marie was head of strings at Guildford Grammar School for seven years forming string ensembles, teaching violin and a year 3 violin program; and a teenage Celtic Rock Band for the boys.

She was leader of the Fremantle Symphony Orchestra for many years. During this time, she kept up her violin tuition for all ages, and also performed in several Irish bands on the Irish scene.

In 2009, Claudene-Marie sang and acted in the FAMDA production "Into the Woods" and received the Most Outstanding Lead Actor Female GAT Award for her role as the Baker's Wife.

She currently teaches violin in Foster and has formed a student string quartet that recently played at the Meeniyan Tavern night.

Afternoon tea will be served after the concert. Adults: $15; Children: Free.

LIVESTOCK, REAL ESTATE & INSURANCE

44 | WEDNESDAY, JUNE 14, 2023 | SOUTH GIPPSLAND SENTINEL-TIMES

It's on with the job for dairy farmer Mark Dowling at Berrys Creek.

Fonterra steps up to meet the competition

PROCESSORS left it to the last minute to announce opening farmgate prices on June 1 and there has already been some adjustments since then.

Initial opening prices averaged around $8.92/Kg MS, 6.6 per cent above last season's opening but almost five per cent down on 2022/23 closing prices.

Saputo opening in the range of $8.90kgMS – $9.05kgMS and Burra Foods $8.50 to $9.00/kg set the standard and others, including Fonterra and Bega have adjusted to meet the competition for supply.

Fonterra Australia offered an opening price of $8.65kgMS before increasing to $9kgMS, Bega opened at $8.80kgMS before announcing the addition of a weighted average Australian fresh premium of $0.20kgMS for Victorian, Riverina NSW and south-east South Australian suppliers.

United Dairy farmers Victoria (UDV) President, Mark Billing, rated the first offers from the processors as “a good starting point”.

Locally, UDV Councillor for South Gippsland Ben Vagg, said it wasn't aggressive enough and would have to test the $10 mark if processors wanted to send the right signal to the sector.

A floating wetland system has been installed at Westernport Water's wastewater lagoon.

How floating wetlands can be used in wastewater treatment

A FLOATING wetland system filled with 1,800 native plants has been installed at Westernport Water's wastewater lagoon at Cowes on Phillip Island, as part of a ground-breaking environmental study.

Together with scientists from Deakin University and CSIRO, Westernport Water will monitor the plants as part of this innovative pilot project over the next 18-months to determine how effective they are at absorbing nutrients, which is also expected to reduce emissions, and will inform future longer-term planning.

Westernport Water's Climate Change Advisor, Meg Humphrys explained that the Floating Wetlands Pilot Project aims to address a common challenge for the water industry in managing the nutrient concentration in treated effluent and emissions produced from wastewater treatment.

Meg said that it's the first study of its kind in the Victorian Water industry to measure the performance of wetland plant species on the quality of treated effluent, greenhouse gas emissions, and the remediation and removal of contaminants, providing evidence to support and encourage more nature-based solutions in the water sector.

Results of the research project will be used to inform the detailed design and construction of a permanent, large-scale restorative wetland system at King Road Wastewater Treatment Plant, with construction scheduled for 2025.

Over the next five years, Westernport Water will invest $20M in projects that reduce environmental impacts and provide positive outcomes for the environment and community.

Projects include Recycled Water Wetland storage- $4.34M, Bio-Gas Waste to Energy - $1.88M and Renewable Energy Generation - $1.56M.

Tributes flow after passing of Brian Rodwell

IT WAS hats off and a minute's silence at the Leongatha VLE Saleyards at Koonwarra last Wednesday, June 7 after the passing of the legendary stock and station man Brian Rodwell on Sunday, June 4 aged 90.

Former colleague Damien Minogue made the announcement of Mr Rodwell's passing and another colleague, Simon Henderson, added some suitable remarks before the saleyards fell silent as a mark of respect for a man who worked alongside them, at all levels, in a career spanning 74 years.

Friend and colleague David Phelan remembered Brian as being highly respected by all.

"He was effectively my boss when I started at the Australian Estates office in Yarram in 1977.

"We'd been organising to have a get-together over dinner before Christmas before we had to change the date of a property auction and we were going ahead with it in the New Year before Brian had a fall and cracked his hip in the middle of February.

"He was starting to get on top of his rehab and was desperate to get back into it when he had a bit of a setback and died.

"It's a big loss, but at 90 years of age, still doing what he loved, you've got to be able to celebrate that as a life well lived.

"He was a terrific fella, very well respected by all and he got on with everyone."

The first president of the Australian Livestock and Property Agents Association (ALPA) Dick Cameron, was a great friend of Brian's and had some nice things to say about him in a statement by ALPA.

"I have had no better friend than Brian. At a personal level he was not only a close friend, but he was a valued mentor and confidante. In fact, I had organised a visit with him in Melbourne this coming Saturday. Brian's contribution to ALPA was enormous and possibly unknown or largely forgotten by many.

"When ALPA was nothing more than an idea (in fact, it didn't even have a name), Brian threw himself behind the concept and he encouraged many others to do the same. His reputation and the power of his personality opened many doors which otherwise would have remained firmly closed.

The late Brian Rodwell was a regular at Leongatha cattle sales for more than 70 years. As a mark of respect there was a minute's silence after his passing at Wednesday's trade cattle day at VLE Leongatha. Mr Rodwell, right, chats with Russell Motton on a Leongatha cattle sale day.

"We travelled together across Southern Australia gathering support for a national agents organisation, visiting industry figures well known to him. I seriously doubt whether, without Brian's endorsement of the concept, ALPA would have become a reality. If it had, it would certainly have taken much longer. Many took the view "If Brian Rodwell thinks this is a good idea, we should have a look at it".

"Brian remained a passionate participant in the industry right to the very end. I owe him much and I will miss him."

A champion of the stock and station agents profession, Brian joined Gippsland & Northern at the age of 16 as a trainee at their Newmarket branch then moved to Dandenong where he was a trainee auctioneer and livestock salesman. In 1957 Brian joined Australian Estates at Kyneton and commenced selling at Newmarket and country store sales. In 1964 Brian purchased King Sons &

Ballantyne Pty Ltd with partner Colin Hill operating at Newmarket.

In 1970 the business was sold to Australian Estates and Brian was appointed Head Country Auctioneer, Manager Newmarket, Livestock Manager, Operations Manager and then Director of Australian Estates Agency Division.

Following the takeover of Australian Estates by D.S.M. in 1981, Brian left and started Rodwells & Co Pty Ltd which grew into a highly successful and formidable pastoral operation in livestock property and wool.

Following his retirement from Rodwells, Brian accepted a position with the Stock & Station Agents Association and on January 5, 2004 he opened the Melbourne office. A calling back into private agency in 2006 saw him join Everitt & Seeley followed by Alex Scott & Staff in 2009 before teaming up in 2015 with long-term friend David Phelan and Simon Henderson with whom he had worked in 1993 at Rodwells & Co and other firms where he continued his career as a rural property specialist at Phelan & Henderson.

Cheaper trend for store sales

AGENTS yarded a reduced yarding of 1700 cattle at last Friday's VLE Leongatha store sale.

A couple of advertised lines were with-drawn from sale due to heavy rain fall in a mixed quality yarding with less heavy feeder types on offer.

A reduced field of buyers attended with Charlton and JBS not in attendance and other buyers operating selectively and at reduced rates.

Overall the market was cheaper again

It was tough going for the secondary types, Xbreds and friesians with paddocks getting wet so early at the start of winter and pasture growth slowing and a flat fat market with processors having plenty of livestock available.

Winter Solstice exhibition underway

FOR the Winter Solstice exhibition this year at ArtSpace Gallery Wonthaggi, artists were asked to respond to the theme of climate change issues and the concept of ‘uncertainty’.

The Winter Solstice itself is acknowledged as the shortest day of the year and in Australia this year 2023 it is effectively Thursday 22 June 12.57 am.

It is a seasonal time celebrated by diverse cultures offering their stories in efforts to explain the mysteries of our planet, seasons, night and day, weather and climate changes, shifts in the environment and nature, times of growth and times of dormancy and hibernation. Art has been a vehicle of communication and imparted vital information from early ancient times to the present day.

This year’s winners were selected by judge John Mutsaers, a renowned and professional artist whose career spans over 40 years with his art sold internationally, and nationally as well as locally. Residing in Inverloch, he is proactively involved in the arts culture of Bass Coast Shire.

With over 50 attendees, the exhibition was officially opened and addressed by Bass Coast Shire Mayor, Councillor Michael Whelan.

ArtSpace gallery is run entirely by volunteers which includes our professional curatorial team. The curation of an art exhibition is an art in itself.

The team, Ursula Theinert, Susan Hall and Karin Murphy Ellis are not only professional artists, but they have remarkable talents for designing an exhibition.

First prize winners are awarded $400 each for 2D and 3D artworks for the open section and $200 for 15-25 years /emerging.

A People’s Choice Award of $100 goes to the artist whose artwork has the most votes by viewers over the duration of the exhibition, so please make your choice and place it in the box provided at ArtSpace Gallery. Only one vote per viewer. The Winner will be announced at the end of the exhibition on Sunday June 25.

It is encouraging to note, that also until June 26, Meeniyar Art Gallery representative of South Gippsland shire is running Rising Tide, an exhibition from artists inspired by the natural environment and climate action.

Selected works are on exhibition now and open to the public until Sunday June 25, 2023.

All art works are for sale.

ArtSpace is open seven days a week 11am – 3pm.

There was no shortage of attendees for ArtSpace’s Winter Solstice exhibition opening night.

Natalie Harrison, Derek Couper, Jeff Robertson, Julian Walker, Nathan Castle, Glenn Sullivan, Claire Gibson, Claire Wylie and Robert Van Oss at Inverloch's 400th parkrun on Saturday.

Inverloch celebrates 400 parkruns

INVERLOCH parkrun celebrated its 400th event on Saturday.

Despite the chilly morning, more than 100 participants crossed the finish line and received their results after the milestone run.

This weekend's run saw a wonderful cross section of the community challenging themselves to beat their personal best or enjoying a nice walk to kickstart the long weekend.

Inverloch's parkrun was launched in 2014 and continues to be a popular social event.

"There's no pressure, it's just an opportunity for people to get out of bed on a Saturday morning and enjoy the fresh air with like minded people," run director Julian Walker said.

"Many of our runners set themselves goals and we love hearing about them going off to great things. It's an excellent event for physical, emotional and social wellbeing. We even hear of our parkrunners planning their holidays around where they can participate in a parkrun."

Inverloch has always been a favourite destination for parkrunners, particularly over a long weekend.

Running along the foreshore, it is has become a beloved location for smashing out record times and catching up for a chat and a coffee afterward.

Before this week's run, Julian took the time to congratulate Graham Facey and Ina Kelly.

Graham and Ina's personal bests from the previous week saw them become Victoria's fastest male and female parkrunners in the 85-89 and the 90-94 age groups respectively.

The parkrunners are thankful for the run directors, event directors and volunteers who continue to show up each week and help the event to run smoothly.

Joining Julian to facilitate the 400th run were volunteers Nathan Castle, Derek Couper, Claire Gibson, Natalie Harrison, Jeff Robertson, Margaret Stewart, Vicki Thompson and Robert Van Oss.

Aussies racers doing us proud

By Peter Cleeland

AUSTRALIAN motorcycle racers Davo Johnson, Josh Brookes and Jason O'Halloran have been carving out successful racing careers in various overseas competitions based in the United Kingdom and on the Isle of Man.

For Josh Brookes, the two-time Bennetts British Superbike champion the recent switch to FHO Racing has re-kindled the Australian's competitive streak as he now sits just five points shy of series leader Tommy Bridewell.

At a recent meeting at Donington Park, Brookes on the S1000RR BMW scored a third to be on the podium to match his earlier great form at Silverstone in round one where he came first and second. Brookes, in the dog eat dog, highly competitive world of British Superbike racing is one of the most successful riders competing in the 2023 championship with an overall record of 56 wins from 341 starts with a total of 151 podiums to his name.

Josh also recently raced at the famous Isle of Man TT for FHO Racing in the Superbike, Supertwin and Supersport classes distinguishing himself with some outstanding results.

The famous 37.75 mile island mountain course has over 230 corners and challenging changing road conditions where riders pit their skills against the track in a time trial.

Each rider departs 10 seconds after the previous rider and events are usually 4 or 6 laps as is the case in the Superbike events.

Speeds of over 200mph were achieved this year with average lap times at over 136mph on the undulating course. In the Superbike class Brookes achieved 7th and 5th placings, while in the Supertwin category he placed 5th and 3rd and in the Superstock race with 45 competitors he finished 5th in the second race and retiring in race one.

For Josh Brookes achieving his first podium finish in the Supertwin class in 2023 was a very rewarding result as he had not competed at the Tourist Trophy meeting since 2018 on a Norton. Keep an eye out for Sydney born Josh Brookes as he flies in Australian flag in the Bennett's British Superbike Championship.

Fellow Australian Davo Johnson who

hails from Adelaide also competed at this years TT in the Superbike, Supersport and Superstock events. Davo is a journeyman in motorcycle racing having raced in the Junior Superstock Championship in the UK, the Dutch and German National series and he has made appearances in the Supersport category in the UK.

Having recovered from serious injuries suffered at Oulton Park in May 2022 Davo was given the distinction of being the first rider to set off down Glencrutchberry Road at the Isle of Man TT in 2023.

His results in achieving top ten finishes in both Supersport races (8th and 9th), the first Superstock race (8th) and (11th and 9th) in the two Superbike races indicate a very successful campaign for a rider who races on beaches, short circuit and open roads.

Third, but by no means least of the talented Aussie trio, Jason O'Halloran who rides for Mcams Yamaha in the British Superbike Series has been knocking loudly on the door threatening to win this championship for the past four years.

Jason with 225 starts has notched up 22 wins and 63 podiums after leaving Australia being the 2007 National Supersport champion. In race two recently held at Donington Park Jason recorded an outstanding win by 0.347 seconds from Englishman Ryan Vickers and Josh Brookes a further 1.4 seconds further back.

Currently in 6th place overall, with 70 championship points O'Halloran who finished 3rd in the 2021 championship will be at the pointy end of the field when the silverware is handed out. In the highly competitive world of motorcycle racing the British Superbike series is without doubt the best domestic competition in the world and many of the competing riders graduate through to the World Superbike Championship from this proving ground.

Having attended the recent Donington Park round in mid May the excitement of the spectacle is infectious with anyone of 10 riders capable of winning any race.

People flock to this event in their droves within excess of 25,000 in attendance. Supporting events include Supersport, Pirelli Superstock, Pirelli National Junior Superstock, the R&G Talent Cup, Junior Supersport and British Sidecar Championships.

So if you're going to the Isle of Man TT slip in a jaunt to a British Superbike meeting and cheer on the Australians you won't be disappointed!

Grand Ridge parkrun

By Carmel Quirk

THE King's Birthday weekend saw a group of 26 running and walking our picturesque trail. Conditions were bitterly cold as this hardy group set off. The steep inclines protected many from the strong north westerly winds. The wind was in our back as we trekked back up the last kilometre. The trail was firm underfoot and not slippery or muddy as in previous weeks. We had a group visiting from Heidelberg and Melbourne all having a strong finish in the top four. The winning time was just under eighteen minutes. A mammoth effort. Only one baby in a pram today who was almost a sleep on the return. Many liked our rail trail and may even have accomplished personal bests. A big thankyou to all our volunteers who braved the chilly winds this morning.

INVERLOCH

IT is with great sadness that the Inverloch Bowling Club announces the passing of John Arnold. John was an active member of the bowls club for many years, both as a bowler and volunteer. He will be sadly missed. John was known to many members in the wider bowling community. The club's thoughts are with Joyce and her family at this difficult time. The Inverloch Bowling Club is pleased to advise that the total amount raised by the club this year in the annual Bowl Over Cancer fundraiser totalled an amazing $5000. Of the total amount, $1822 was raised throughout the year, including amounts donated by the corporate bowlers from their weekly prize money. On the Bowls Day itself, held on Thursday, a further $3178 came in from the various activities held on the day, including the green fees which were donated by the club, as well as other member direct donations. A big thank you to all members who participated on the day, the wonderful sponsors for their generous donations to the raffle and to the Inverloch RSL and Lions Club for their cash donations. The total amount raised is to be donated to Bass Coast Health as a further contribution from the club towards the equipment requirements of the cancer unit at the Wonthaggi hospital. A big thank you to everyone who helped with the organization of the event on Thursday. There were 46 bowlers at the Bowl Over Cancer Day, who competed over two games. Midweek Another beautiful winter's day welcomed the bowlers at Corinella this morning. The rain had fallen overnight, and the green was quite damp with thick dew, but the weather was welcoming, so 29 of the bowling family took to the green for the challenge. As always, lots of laughter and friendly banter could be heard from all corners. After the lunch break the weather turned very much to spring as most bowlers shed their coats and jumpers as the sun beat down, making it a wonderful day overall. One or two wrong bias bowls were played to keep the RCH tin filling; the club is always happy to see this happening. Phil looked after everyone in the bar, as well as the kitchen. Peter, Pauline and John looked after everyone and prepared the draw as well as the raffles. The club thanks them very much. This week's winners on 35 points were Peter McWilliams and Lindsay Russell (co skips), Luke Monckton (3), Pauline McWilliams (2) and Tony Morris (L). Runners up also on a score of 35 points were Tony Heppleston (S), Ken Barnes (3) and Bill Williams (L). Best One Game winners this week were Vern Elliott (S), Chris Brooks (3) and Kevin Kitchin (L). Meanwhile, hope everyone has a safe and enjoyable week.

WONTHAGGI

There were 23 hardy bowlers who graced the greens until the weather set in. Saturday saw a sunny morning and 40 bowlers played. After lunch, the weather changed with a cold wind and the sun went behind the clouds. There were three teams that were two-game winners, with the unlucky team being Arthur Moule, Graham Turton, and Allan Ireland. # Gippsland Soccer League’s takes on Country Championships

EVERY year the Country Leagues Association coordinates the much looked forward to Country Championships where twelve regional soccer associations are invited to submit representative teams for three days of soccer.

This year the Gippsland Soccer League submitted their first ever U18s team into the tournament and what an exciting campaign it was.

As one of the smallest associations, Gippsland is often faced with tough games against regions substantially larger however, the 2023 U18s team proved themselves a worthy opponent.

Their first game saw them take on powerhouse Geelong in a nail biting game.

Gippsland held their own, shutting down any attacks and setting up numerous runs of their own.

It was a free kick granted outside the 18 yard box that saw local star Liam Richard score the first goal of the tournament and secure Gippsland their first ever win against Geelong.

Their second game saw them take on hosts Ballarat on the synthetic pitch. Ballarat proved a well composed side as the Gippsland players adapted to different playing conditions.

Though they went down 0-3 to the hosts, it was a relatively even game.

Day two saw them take on competition favourites Sunraysia in a tough match. Holding them to 0-1 at half time, a few defensive errors saw the top team take advantage and secure a dominant win over Gippsland with a 0-6 end score.

The second game of Day 2 was an even match up against South West.

The game was wonderful to watch as both sides proved worthy opponents and the result ended up a draw 1-1.

The final day of the tournament saw Gippsland U18s up against Albury Wodonga who desperately needed a win to put them through to the Grand Final.

Gippsland were determined to not make it easy for them. Despite conceding an early goal, Gippsland retained composure and maintained dominant play. Though there were some close calls, Gippsland were unable to get one in the net and conceded defeat 0-1.

Finishing a respectable 4th overall at the tournament, GSL's U18s showed the strength of talent we have in our region. Well done, Gippsland!

PRE-NPL U12s GUFC vs Barton United

By Jason Lee

A SUNNY morning greeted Gippsland away at Barton United, and after taking a moment to adjust to the challenging pitch, Gippsland opened their account via Isaac Sharp, putting them up 1 nil.

Sid Box and Blake Breheny controlled the midfield, supplying Dino Grbic, Isaac Sharp and Hudson Reiss with scoring opportunities, who took full advantage, going in at half time 3 nil up.

Ryan Ogg, Lewis Manzo, Beckham Bremner and keeper Romeo Vitale took care of business down back, almost keeping a clean sheet.

Harry Lee and Lucas O'Dowd provided run and carry up the wings, with Gippsland able to pile on another 3 goals in the second half to post a confidence building win, making it two in a row.

Result – GUFC 6 defeated Barton United 1.

Goals – Isaac Sharp 3, Dino Grbic 2, Harry Lee 1.

Player of the Match – Isaac Sharp.

PRE-NPL U13s GUFC vs Dandenong City

By Alan Roberts

On the road again is starting to become the theme song for the Pre NPL U13 boys, with this week's destination being Dandenong City.

The United lads were keen for redemption against Dandy City after a high scoring game in round 1 that did not go our way.

From the first whistle it was on as United settled quickly and started to dominate possession and play but could not find the back of the net. Strong work in the middle from Diwa, Sharp and Goodwin went unrewarded. A change in the midfield saw Whiting injected into the game and not long after he calmly buried one into the back of the net from long range to give United a 1-0 lead. After repelling a resurgent City for the last 10 minutes of the half the boys went into the break 1-0 up.

The second half was a goal fest, with 6 goals scored between both teams 4 of which came from the United boys. Most pleasing was seeing a strong team performance with five individual goal scorers for the game in Whiting, Semmens, McCann-Diston, Noppert and Anderson. Again, the defensive trio of Halket-Dobson, Robson and Roberts held firm, with the latter two gaining confidence to push forward for some overlapping scoring opportunities.

In a strong performance against the third placed team in the league United came out on top 5-2 winners at the final whistle, a result that will make the teams around them take notice moving forward.

JBNPL U14s GUFC vs Manningham United Blues

By Kirsty Hannan

A slow start to Gippsland's home game against Manningham United Blues FC on Sunday, with the boys lacking their usual starting energy. At times a scrappy match, Gippsland seemed unable to find their teammates boots and clear the ball from the middle during the first half.

A break at half time and the boys returned to the field with renewed enthusiasm, the final score a one all draw.

Striker Jett Koppen played strongly throughout the match, taking several shots at goal that unfortunately didn't find the net. Manningham managed to break through Gippsland's defence early in the second half to score the first goal of the match.

Gippsland quickly rallied, found their flow and played the final twenty minutes of the game with the intensity and drive the crowd are more used to seeing. Several good runs from Ciaran Toomey, Bill Prior and Henry Knight had the away team's defence under pressure right until the final whistle.

Mid way through the second half, Mitch Dastey took a beautiful free kick which sailed over Manningham's defence towards the goal, Hamish Crosbie leaped and managed a well-judged header straight past the keeper to even the score.

Ethan Bruce in defence worked incredibly hard to ensure the away team were unable to score further, ably backed up by Declan Paku, and goalkeeper Harrison Ritchie still on loan from the U13 side. A draw for Gippsland United. Next week the boys will face South Melbourne FC at Caulfield.

JBNPL U18s GUFC vs Manningham United

By Jared Goodwin

The Gippsland 18s came to the park off the back of a tough four nil loss last week away at Kingstons. In Morwell on Sunday, they faced equal top of the table Manningham United who had a record of 6 wins, 1 loss coming into the contest.

With Manningham scoring a minimum of 3 goals every game so far, the Gippsland defence knew they had their work cut out for them. Gippsland opened the game up full of confidence, needing to defend early, before a great cross from Leeton Hili sent Ethan Biljna in on goal, opening the scoring inside the first ten minutes to give the home side a surprise early lead.

Gippsland attempted to halt the Manningham momentum by slowing the game down, defending brilliantly as a unit, and trying to at least get into half time leading against the ladder leaders. Manningham created chance after chance, with save after save coming from goalkeeper Jared Goodwin, who tipped a close-range volley onto the crossbar and kept Gippsland in the lead at half time.

Coming into the second half, and yet to make a change, Gippsland would make three half time changes to attempt to take the points. Although Manningham continued to display their dominance, more saves and defensive efforts from Ben McCartney and Bayden Heussmann forced Manningham to become frustrated, which saw substitute Monday Cholelel to pounce on a defensive error and double the home sides advantage.

Manningham, on the brink of their second loss of the season, would press the Gippsland defence, until the final whistle came and secured Gippsland's second victory this season, securing their second clean sheet in what was a memorable day for the Gippsland boys.

Gippsland 2, Manningham 0.

Winter Orange Round kicking off soon

GIPPSLAND sports clubs are continuing to step up and say no to gender-based violence by participating in Orange Round.

Since launching in 2015, more than 50 Orange Rounds have been hosted by 35 Gippsland clubs as a stand against family violence and a showcase of gender equality in sport.

Inaugural Orange Round partner, Gippsland League, has once again committed to hosting Orange Round this season, dedicating all Round 10 football and netball matches to the initiative.

Wonthaggi Power will take on Maffra in the feature match of the round at Wonthaggi Recreation Reserve on June 17, with players, coaches, and officials participating in an education session for practical ideas on what their club can do to show it is inclusive and welcoming and values gender equality.

Senior footballers and A Grade netballers at all five Round 10 matchday venues across the Gippsland League will wear orange arm bands in solidarity with the shared cause of preventing violence against women, with supporters also encouraged to wear orange on the day.

Orange Rounds are a partnership between GippSport, Gippsland Centre Against Sexual Assault and Gippsland Women's Health.

Boaters warned about drowning risks

LIFE Saving Victoria (LSV) has issued an urgent reminder warning boaters and fishers of their risk of drowning during the month of June, as one in five fatal drownings during this month in the past 20 years involved people fishing or boating.

Victorians' drowning risk increases further on the King's Birthday long weekend, with Victorians 68 per cent more likely to drown on a public holiday than any other day of the year.

LSV manager research and evaluation Dr Hannah Calverley said the colder weather should not stop water safety being front of mind for those spending time in, on or around water this winter.

Safe Transport Victoria manager – recreational boating safety Gareth Johnson reminded boaters and fishers to "know the three" and stay safe out on the water this winter.

"Know the three: Remember to always wear a lifejacket, carry two waterproof communication devices and know the weather before and during your trip."

Tragically, since 1 July 2022, 52 people have drowned in Victorian waters.

This is eleven more than the ten-year average and of the 52 fatal drowning incidents, 66 per cent occurred in inland or coastal waterways, and 34 per cent were around the home or within other bodies of water.

Why volunteers are number 1 at Wonthaggi Power

THERE are some things that are bigger than footy, or more accurately, right at the heart of what football-netball clubs are all about.

And one such occasion comes along this Saturday afternoon when Wonthaggi Power hosts Maffra at home, featuring the presentation of No. 1 Ticketholder Membership to 99-year-old Sadie Hanley.

And you're all invited to share lunch and the occasion with her from 12 noon.

Of course, Sadie was made a life member of the club more than 47 years ago, in 1976, for services rendered to catering, fundraising and the social side of the club.

There's an image that resides in the deep recesses of many old local footy fans' minds, of a handful of Wonthaggi Blues' premiership players, hanging off the back of one of Hanley's Dairy's horse-drawn milk carts, the day after the night before, waving streamers as the Hanley boys finish their morning milk run.

No doubt none of them had been to sleep.

Hanley's Dairy was operated by Sadie and the late Noel (Chick) Hanley for about 25 years, their horse-drawn carts etching an indelible image of old Wonthaggi.

"Hanley's Dairy – Prompt and Courteous Service. You can whip our cream, but you can't beat our milk."

And not only were the four Hanley boys, all of them Wonthaggi footballers at one time or another; Peter, Phil, Denis and Terry pressed into service at the dairy, but it was also practically a prerequisite of getting a job at Hanley's that you were prepared to play for the Blues.

Wonthaggi football club stalwart, Sadie Hanley, will be presented with Power's No. 1 Ticketholder Membership at a luncheon at Wonthaggi this Saturday, June 17, in her 100th year. All are welcome to attend.

That's how deep-rooted support for the Wonthaggi Blues Football Club ran in the Hanley household... these days transferred in full measure to the combined Rovers-Blues outfit under the banner of Wonthaggi Power.

Noel didn't play for the Blues, however after playing a few seasons at Williamstown, he did play for Dalyston and East Shops locally, also coaching the Blues' reserves at one time.

But it was when the kids and later grand-kids started playing that Noel and Sadie really worked as a team, together with other staunch couples, to join the committees and staff the canteen of course, organise the annual ball, progressive dinners which were popular fundraisers in the day, and all the rest.

Those were heady days for footy and netball (basketball) in Wonthaggi, with premierships every other year, and a great time was had by all.

But footy regimes come and go and you sometimes wonder if the work of those who have gone before is even remembered.

Well, this Saturday Wonthaggi Power will remember and honour Sadie Hanley, and the many women like her, who have quietly backed the football-netball club to the hilt over the years.

And when they run out, that's what they're playing for, as much as they are for the workers of today, and their own aspirations to finally be the group that breaks through for the club's first Gippsland premiership.

So, if you know Sadie Hanley, or have been one of those who has worked tirelessly for the club over the years, Rovers or Blues (even East Shops!) come along this Saturday at 12 noon and honour Sadie in her 100th year, and all those who have gone before.

Sadie turns 100 on Christmas Day this year.

John's still bowling along at 90

TAKE a look around, at 90 years of age, and it's easy to think that many of your old friends have gone.

Not so John Bird of Wonthaggi.

When he blew out the candles on his 90th birthday cake last Friday, at the Wonthaggi Senior Citizens Club's indoor bowls day, he had, not one, but two tables of friends around him to sing a rousing chorus of 'Happy Birthday'.

And they all saddled up to enjoy a sumptuous afternoon tea of superb jelly cakes, lemon coconut slices, ribbon sandwiches, and all the trimmings.

No one turning 90 ever had it so good!

A keen lawn bowler in his day, at the Wonthaggi Bowls Club, he traded his outdoor bowls for the indoor variety a decade or so ago, and he loves the company as much as the competition these days.

"I think I played in a Division Two premiership or two but it's just about getting out and joining in these days."

That's the way Dot Harland, president of the indoor bowls club sees it too, stressing that new members are always welcome.

"It's a lot easier to get out, especially through the winter, when you've got somewhere to go to and friends to share a game and afternoon tea with. We play indoor bowls every Tuesday and Friday at the senior citizens centre and there's a 'Lady Birds' day, just for women of a Wednesday," said Dot.

"It's the company and the conversation as much as anything else otherwise you might just be stuck at home."

If you're interested and need a bit of encouragement, contact Dot Harland on 0407 823 597, and ask about coming along to indoor bowls.

Wonthaggi's John Bird had a big, happy crowd around him as he blew out the candles on his 90th birthday cake last Friday at the Wonthaggi Senior Citizens Indoor Bowls Day, including Max and Judy Sweetnam.

Wonthaggi Underwater hockey club have done it again

NOT content with winning the state championships in Geelong a few weeks back, a core of Wonthaggi players teamed up with some Monash University players, called themselves "WONASH" and headed off to the Gold Coast to find the best club teams in Australia at the "Kings Cup".

With five players 18 or under, a few young blokes and another three "grey beards" it was decided "B" grade was the right spot to send a competitive team for the weekend.

Day one saw 'Wonash' have a convincing win over Morayfield and Toowoomba and a draw against Maribyrnong in the round robin.

Day two saw a draw against the Gold Coast, with a good win against the Barras and a slightly controversial draw against Wollongong.

But never fear, that wasn't to be the last time Wollongong and Wonash crossed paths that day.

The semi-Final between Wonash and Maribyrnong was a bit of a grudge match with both teams determined to be the only Victorian team left standing, but Wonash prevailed in the end winning comfortably and booking themselves a spot in the Grand Final.

All weekend the Wonash back line players of Caden Milnes, Kev Chisholm and Michael Milnes worked hard to defend the goals and set up attacking drives for all the forwards.

Particularly they set up their other Wonthaggi teammates in Hamish Scothern, Jack Borelli and Ryan and Maddi Maund who all had a field day scoring multiple goals and leaving many in doubt that they are all still kids still learning the skills.

Kev Chisholm has obviously given up on breathing and has found an alternative way to oxygenate going by the amount of time he spent on the bottom of the pool repelling attacks with Caden dashing out of half back almost becoming another forward and collecting a few goals himself.

The Grand final was a grudge match against Wollongong and after numerous fouls in the first five minutes the referees were heard telling the players "You're not meant to try and kill each other".

This was a spirited bunch though and with a very fancy trophy on the line and the ability to call yourself the national B grade champions of Australia, the result was an even harder attack on the puck with one goal going to Wollongong at the half time break.

Coming into the second half the Wonash crew stepped it up another gear with most of the play happening in their attacking half, both Maddi and Jack were playing superbly and were plain unlucky that the puck just didn't quite drop into the tray for them.

After one attacking play and with bodies everywhere in front of the tray the referee signaled a goal to Wonash and we had a draw.

Whilst Wonash kept attacking they just couldn't score another goal before full time which took us once again into Golden Goal, a place the Wonthaggi players knew only too well.

Wollongong came out hard and almost had it done in the first two minutes but once again Kev said 'NO' and saved multiple goals before the forwards were able to link up and start their own attack.

As had happened multiple times already that weekend Caden received the pass, decided he was a forward, went around opposition players like they were witches' hats, flicked a no look pass to Hamish who still had the full back to get past, which he did in superb style and flicked the winning goal into the tray for a Wonash win.

Wonthaggi are lucky to have some amazing senior players with a lot of them having either played for Australia or Victoria helping bring through the new wave of youngsters.

With Jack Borelli and Caden Milnes heading off for the Australian U19 Mens training camps this week and Maddi Maund heading to the Gold coast for the U19 Women's training camp in the next few weeks, there's more exciting times ahead for the Wonthaggi Underwater Hockey club and their players.

As always new and old players are all welcome to the Wonthaggi YMCA on Thursday nights, juniors from 7-8pm and adults from 8-9pm.

Bring your bathers and they'll supply the rest even if you've never used a mask and snorkel.

"The event presents great opportunities for community groups like schools, sporting clubs and businesses. ## Short Course racing returns to Splash

LEONGATHA Splash hosted the first Short Course meet of Gippsland for 2023 on Sunday, June 11.

The first competition of the season saw 200 swimmers, including 70 South Gippsland Bass (SGB) swimmers, more than 70 from Melbourne and the rest from Gippsland, race over a variety of distances at the pool.

The popularity of the event meant the club had to close entries a fortnight early.

It was a new experience for the younger local swimmers who started this year, as it was their first racing experience and judging by the smiles, it certainly won't be their last.

For many of the swimmers, it was their first short course for the year.

Short course races are in a 25m pool, meaning a lot more laps are swum.

Many of the SGB swimmers were thrilled to see how much they knocked off their times from last winter, sometimes by up to 15 seconds.

With two major Championship events coming up in August, it was a chance for many to see how close they are to qualifying times, with a number of swimmers coming away with swims that will see them part of the SGB team going to the event.

South Gippsland Bass swimmers Indigo Campbell, Daisy Gilliam, Andi Fisher, Jaya Dowel, Amy Hobson and Brooklyn Packer were gearing up for their next race on Sunday.

The swimmers were well supported on the day, as the facility was packed with spectators.

The event is also a major fundraiser for the club, with raffles and a barbecue helping raise funds that will help the club cover running costs and help send coaches and teams to the championships.

Head coach Dylan Muir was pleased with the day.

"The meet kick starts our racing season, and begins the build up to Vic Country Champs and Vic Age champs in August," he said.

"Today will allow us to see where each swimmer is currently at in the early phase of their training and allows swimmers to try new events that will be their focus this season. It is also a fantastic meet for our new swimmers. Being able to compete in their home environment, surrounded by a big SGB team always makes the first time a more memorable and relaxed experience".

Leigha exceeds expectations with six gold medals

Leigha finally had the chance to tick it off her bucket list this year and was motivated by the naysayers.

"I was told that when I fell pregnant that I was pretty much I was going to blow out and get fat and that was the end of my body.

"I'm a person that if you tell me I can't, I really feed off that and I just love to be like, you know what, I am going to do it and that sort of pushes me.

"I feel like we're not given dreams without also being given the tools to be able to pursue them and literally achieve anything that you want to."

Leigha returned to training the Monday after the show.

"We're now training, putting on a bit of weight and working on putting on a bit more muscle to be able to compete with the American ladies."

Leigha is currently looking for sponsorship to go to the US and if any person or business is interested in this opportunity, please contact Leigha at l\_lharris@hotmail.com.

Kane Pepperell, in the centre of the back row, gets set for his 400th game with the South Gippsland Umpires Association on Saturday, with the support of other umpires for the senior match between Dalyston and Tooradin-Dalmore

Pepperell notches 400 games

KANE Pepperell celebrated a major milestone on Saturday, with the field umpire officiating in his 400th match for the South Gippsland Umpires Association (SGUA).

He shared the occasion with girlfriend Gemma Cook who was one of the boundary umpires and his goal umpiring father Brian, with the trio part of the contingent of officials overseeing the senior match between Dalyston and Tooradin-Dalmore.

"It was exciting to get to the 400 and put a lot back into the area for footy but it was a one-sided game in the end," Kane said.

He added it was enjoyable to run onto the field with a couple of good mates.

SGUA supplies officials for both West Gippsland and Gippsland League matches, having provided umpires to the Alberton League when it was operational.

Kane said a lot has changed in his 15 years of umpiring, both in regard to skills and rules.

He said the toughest rule to adjudicate is determining which tackles are acceptable and which are dangerous, with holding the ball also challenging at times.

He prefers the umpiring approach at local level to that adopted in AFL matches, particularly in relation to deliberately out of bounds calls.

"It's just the blatant ones," he said of the less severe approach to that rule at local level.

While Kane wishes more junior players were coming through the ranks, he enjoys seeing AFL players come back to local footy.

He said while SGUA numbers have been reasonably good recently, the Association is always looking for more officials.

Kane said umpiring is a great way to keep fit and meet plenty of mates.

He trains on Wednesday nights at Leongatha Velodrome, saying the umpiring coach changes things up from week to week.

Kane offered some advice for those contemplating taking up umpiring but concerned about negative comments from players and spectators.

"You've got to brush off the rubbish," he said, adding there is plenty of support from the umpiring group.

Kane Pepperell continues to enjoy umpiring and looks forward to building on the 400 games he has officiated for the South Gippsland Umpires Association.

Competitive grand final for netballers

W&DNA Summer Indoor Night Netball Competition concluded the season with a Grand Final on Monday, June 5.

It was tremendous having 10 teams enter this season, and well done to the captains' organising their teams.

All in all, there was some great netball happening this season.

This comp provides the opportunity to play netball with friends, for fun, fitness and self-improvement also welcoming newcomers.

It was particularly special having spectators come along to watch the Grand Final and support players.

W&DNA also would like to thank our very appreciated umpires and up and coming new umpires, well done.

So in the end it was Sapphires and Marvels to play off for the title of Premiers.

It was a very well contested game with many impressive, clean intercepts happening. Let alone beautiful consistent shooting at both ends.

Teams consistently worked the ball smoothly down the court with fast, accurate and well timed passing.

There was only 2 points the difference after the first quarter, then four points at half time. The third quarter saw Sapphires dominate and increase their lead to 11.

But Marvels to their credit were not giving up at and won the last quarter by 1. Congratulations to both teams. Final score Sapphires 33 to Marvels 23.

The Winter Season W&DNA Indoor Night Netball Competition will commence August 7.

Olivia Gilmour stretches high to take this catch in the midcourt for Wonthaggi Power on Saturday.

Korumburra-Bena's Ash Cuff worked hard through the centre against Koo Wee Rup on Saturday.

LEONGATHA

UNDER 13: Our defenders were too strong for the Drouin goalers, getting lots of intercepts and rebounds. Our midcourters worked it beautifully down the court and our goalers were strong in attack. A fantastic team effort, great result girls. Score: Leongatha 38 def Drouin 17.

Under 15: All girls showed all game plays from training into the game. Movement and communication all throughout the game was really strong. A good win to pump us up for a tough game next week. Score: Leongatha 44 def Drouin 7.

Under 17: The game flowed nicely, we let them come back towards the end but we held our own to secure the win. Congratulations to Lucy on her 50th club game and she played a ripper game to celebrate. Score: Leongatha 37 def Drouin 31.

C Grade: Killer game from the gals. Down by 12 in the first half and brought it back to one point is a huge achievement. Everyone should be so proud of how we played and we will get them next time! Go Parrots! Score: Leongatha 39 def by Drouin 40.

B Grade: First half of the game was tight but in the second half the team dug deep and played an awesome team game. Lots of great plays and lots of things to work on. Great game girls! Score: Leongatha 60 Def Drouin 50.

A Grade: A slow start this week which cost us in the end. We had momentum in the last quarter, but it was our own mistakes that cost us the game. Plenty to work on and plenty of positives. Let's work hard and we can definitely turn this around. Score: Leongatha 47 def by Drouin 52.

Top sides clash in tight match

Fish Creek's Matt McGannon kicking the ball into forward 50.

TWO of the top performing sides of 2023, set up a mouth watering clash to close out round 8.

The Magpies are tough to beat at the best of times, let alone when they are fielding one of their strongest teams of the season on their home ground.

It should be noted that Fish Creek had been fearless all season and was set on not letting Yinnar stand in their way.

The Kangaroos fierce but falling short by just seven points.

"It was another hotly contested game of footy that we're happy to walk away from with another four points," Daniel Taylor, Yinnar coach said.

"Throughout the day I thought we looked the better team but to Fish Creek's credit they didn't go away, we were 20 odd points up with not long to go but they finished strong and could have pinched it if they kicked straight. Really happy to get the win in what was another full team performance."

It was one that got away for the Lions, and when they don't fall your way they are always hard to take, especially given the closeness of the competition.

"A really hard fought game, although not overly high scoring momentum swings throughout the day kept it interesting," Jarrod Walker, Fish Creek coach said.

"Ended up with more scoring shots which showed we can mix it one of the better teams in the comp. A timely week off to refresh and build into the second half of the season."

As interesting and exciting as the first half year has been, everything points to the second half being even more so.

By Rob Popplestone

STONY Creek had signalled, even in defeat to the top of the table Newborough last week, that when they put it all together they could be far better than what their current position is.

However, their close loss last week faded in comparison to their heart-breaking loss this week.

"In extremely blustery conditions it was a good old fashioned game of contested country footy," Jason Wind-erlich, Thorpdale coach said.

"Chris has got his boys playing a good tough brand around the contest and also a good system moving the ball out of their backline which we couldn't defend at times.

"Both teams had momentum throughout the day and in all honesty the game probably deserved to be a draw. We were extremely lucky to get that last point with five seconds left to get the 4 points."

Ecstasy for one team, almost always means heartbreak for another.

"It was another game that we let slip. Inaccuracy in front of goal killed us again. It was pleasing to see our boys back up a strong performance last week. I'm confident if we keep playing our brand of footy the wins will come," Chris Verboon, Stony Creek coach.

"Thorpdale had nothing to lose in the last quarter and to their credit were able to come home strong. They have a strong side with some quality talent.

"As disappointing as it is, we will take a lot of positives from the game."

The Lions are seemingly within touching distance of taking the next step, which would push them further up the ladder and cause even more headaches than they already are.

But it won't just happen, the hard work that has already been invested, needs also to somehow find another level.

Promising win for Tarwin

By Rob Popplestone

TARWIN were one of a handful of teams desperate to start to string some wins together. The Sharks were one of just a handful of clubs thought to be a premiership contender and to that end they could ill afford to let this home game against the winless Hill End slip through their fingers.

“We got the four points. It wasn’t pretty. We had a senior debut for Royce Patterson and he bagged four goals! Was a super effort from him! Hill End still has some quality players and they all played well together on the weekend,” Troy Hemming, Tarwin coach said.

Tarwin are showing signs of some significant improvement and although free kicks might have favoured the Rovers on the day, the Sharks did the job they wanted to do.,

Next week we hit the halfway mark of the season and although the Hills’ men have not yet registered a win, you can take it to the bank, they will upset a couple in the run home.

Hill End tries to break from Tarwin's Corey Green.

Tarwin's Jason Kennedy looks for options.

Magpies fall to Demons

Rob Popplestone

LOCAL rivalries can sometimes bring the best out of clubs despite their respective ladder positions. Prior to round eight, home team Toora sat second from bottom, whilst their MDU opponents enjoyed some comfort inside the top four.

The Magpies may have lost but sometimes you can be satisfied you did your best despite a 50-point loss.

“We were able to get out of Toora with the four points. It was tough and windy conditions and to their credit they fought really hard all day,” said Nathan Allen, MDU coach.

There were some Magpie’s faithful that thought an upset could be on the cards, and although that didn’t happen, there were some encouraging signs that point to some better luck in the future...

“Another step in the right direction, our stoppage work on the weekend was great and effort from the whole team was up. Credit to Meeniyen today who took advantage of turnovers and sliced us up on the turnover,” said Jack Weston, Toora coach.

Fans have got to love what you see in the MGFNL in 2023, hard fought contests, sometimes with luck, sometimes will none, but always with respect for the opponent no matter the outcome.

Boolarra gets best of rivalry

By Rover

BOOLARRA recorded its second win from seven matches this season, when it defeated arch rival Mirboo North by 34 points, to retain the George Lewis Memorial Shield, at Boolarra Recreation Reserve on Saturday.

In so doing, the Demons snapped a five-game losing streak, after an insipid 80-point thrashing at Fish Creek the previous week.

Boolarra made six changes for the match that included homegrown 2011 premiership veteran, Michael Cleaver, making his first appearance for 2023.

Also selected and featuring prominently for the Demons were Joel Mason, who has recently returned from Churchill and seasoned Warrandyte recruit, Michael Cullum.

As one of Mid Gippsland's six clubs without juniors, there is no refuting that Boolarra's recruiting relies on ready-made footballers joining its ranks from other leagues.

The game commenced with Boolarra scoring four behinds and Mirboo North another couple, after which Luke Marriott slipped in for the Demons' first goal, following 14 minutes of hectic, hard-core, full-bore football.

Early on, Boolarra's spotting up inside its forward 50 was frequent, but its shots at goal needed realigning.

Shortly after, Sam Mazou kicked truly for the home side; then Mirboo North's first major came from Damien Turner, following an inescapable crocodile tackle on his opponent.

Late in the first term, the Demons were one man down on the interchange bench, when Nick Miller limped from the field with a hamstring injury.

Boolarra's bevy of other imported players, including Shaun Falla, Brendan and Joel Mason, Marriott, Cullum, Patrick Haines, Luke Miller, Josh Segond and Kyle Hearn, helped turn the Demons' 14-point quarter-time lead into a 22-point advantage by the main break.

Mirboo North youngsters, Beau Peters, Jesse Chila, Shannon Kennedy, Beau Melbourne, Jack Couper, Max and Ethan Woodall, Taj Wilkins and Harry Mahoney were fighting hard for possessions, but Boolarra's purer and higher overhead marks and superb field kicks were standouts.

Ever-improving giant Tiger ruckman, Patrick Lewis' leaping perspicacity at the stoppages, in addition to his aerobic capacity, audacity and tenacity around the ground, were impressive.

It left Boolarra's veteran warhorse, Matt Windsor, back on his heels and gasping for breath, many metres behind the action...

Despite Justin Pellicano being yellow carded for the second week running, Mirboo North displayed courage and resilience to outscore Boolarra by two goals in the third term.

Darcy Brock, Ben Campbell, Pellicano — until leaving the field — Turner, Chila, and Rhys Kratzat were worthwhile contributors in Mirboo North's third-term recovery.

When Pellicano returned early in the final quarter, he snapped a curling left footer through the big white sticks for his third major, to reduce the Tigers' deficit to two points.

Boolarra's superior play came into its own, with the Demons booting five unanswered goals to finish strongly and productively.

Nonetheless, until that final siren sounded, there was no desire by any Tiger to stand outside the fire, when it was his turn to go.

This Saturday, Mirboo North hosts Yinnar at Tigerland, where it will hold its annual footy and netball premier-ships reunion day.

Parrots deliver expected win over Drouin

WHILE Leongatha entered its match with Drouin an unbackable favourite, the Hawks displayed accurate early passing and booted the game's first goal, but the script followed expectations from then on as Leongatha prevailed by 99 points.

The Parrots booted six goals for the remainder of the first term, with Drouin failing to add to its early score, enabling the men in green and yellow to take a commanding 32-point lead to the first break.

At the huddle, Leongatha coach Trent McMicking praised his players for their midfield clearance work and ability to win the hard ball, also noting the Parrots took eight intercept marks for the quarter, an effort he praised as "huge".

Those endeavours set the pattern for the day.

Tallin Brill excelled throughout for the triumphant Parrots, booting three goals in each half but also making a strong contribution around the ground.

Tom Marriott flourished as always, his ball winning ability and precise use seeing him named his side's best, although Brill might easily have received that honour.

Jack Hume was superb with footy in hand and in the pressure he applied to opponents when they had the Sherrin, refusing to give an inch and tackling with ferocity.

Jenson Garnham was again on song, nailing five goals for the high-flying Parrots, with ever-reliable onballer Aaron Heppell another decisive ball winner and user and Cade Maskell again featuring in the best.

Lachie Wright was another Parrot having a big day around the sticks, equalling Garnham's goal tally and playing a part in the ruck.

Kim Drew was solid all day for the winning side, with Levi Hickey stepping back up to senior level and contributing well whether helping in the ruck or winning the footy.

Ben Willis worked hard in the ruck as did his Drouin opponent Ryan Taylor.

Coach McMicking was unsurprisingly still happy with what he was seeing by three quarter time.

"The work rate has been really good," he said.

McMicking also mentioned the willingness of his players to sacrifice their own game for teammates.

Leongatha spearhead Jack Ginnane was a perfect example of that team-first mentality having opportunities to finish with more than the couple of majors he kicked, but always willing to pass to a teammate in better position.

Willis was another, still willing to run hard in the last quarter to apply pressure to an opponent despite a solid day of work in the ruck.

Hugo Birks had some positive moments for Drouin, kicking the game's opening goal and adding another, with Timothy Hancock matching that output and being named the beaten side's best player, with captain Jarrod Marshall also doing well.

Leongatha gets set to battle it out with fifth-placed Sale in an away clash against last year's grand final adversary.

Wonthaggi Power's Josh Bates arrived late to this marking duel and almost took the mark over Morwell's Brandon McAuliffe.

Wonthaggi Power coach Jarryd Blair combined with Cooper McInnes to create this opportunity up forward but only a point resulted.

Powerful finish a good sign for Wonthaggi

WONTHAGGI Power ticked a few more boxes last Saturday on their way to their ultimate goal in 2023.

They backed up after a significant challenge the week before.

And they put a contained opponent to the sword in the last quarter.

Earlier in the year, in Round 2, when they put up a grand performance to lead the previously undefeated Leongatha with only minutes to go in their local derby, they couldn’t repeat the heroics the following week against Moe, fading away with an insipid performance in the last quarter.

Not so last Saturday.

Having disposed of premierships contenders Traralgon by a record 79 points, with a complete performance the week before, they repeated the dose again last Saturday against Morwell.

“It was really well done today. It has been one of our challenges to back-up after a big win and we did that today. And we want to keep that going,” said Blair, in a jubilant Power rooms after a 14-goal annihilation of the visiting Morwell Tigers.

“When you’ve got everyone contributing in their roles, you can finish on like that,” he said.

It had been a specific instruction from Blair, at the three-quarter time huddle, to be “ruthless” in the last quarter.

And they carried out his instructions to the letter, putting the foot on the accelerator to kick six goals to Morwell’s one in the last quarter.

“I thought we left a few holes for them that they weren’t able to take but others will. What are we trying to do?” he asked his players at the last break, clearly referencing their aims in 2023.

“Let’s be ruthless in this last quarter,” he said.

It was all there for the Power on Saturday.

Their rock of the past two seasons, the back six, were supreme again this week, not only containing their opposition to just four goals for the day, but also drilling their transition to attack through the likes of Kyle Reid, Tim Knowles, Fergus O’Connor, Josh Shultz, Jye Gilmour and Shannon Bray.

Jordan Staley was again given the job on the opposition’s key forward, holding the talented Brandon McDonald to just one goal for the day, where he has kicked 30 so far this season, including five against Leongatha in Round 6.

But there was plenty of pressure on the Morwell ball carriers, from a winning Power on-ball group, and around the flanks.

The onballers, including Aiden Lindsay, Toma Huther, Ryan Sparkes, Tom Murray, Bodie Mabilia and a couple of others taking their turn; earned particular praise from Blair afterwards.

Although it must be said, Morwell’s forwards did miss some absolute sitters, none more so than Riley Loprese who shanked one from close range, right on the three-quarter time siren, after Adam Braendler had presented the goal to him on a platter.

And the Wonthaggi forward line looks settled and systematic; Cooper McInnes backing up his “magnificent seven” the previous week with another five in a matter-of-fact display, Troy Harley playing the lead-up role strongly with four, but also racking up scoring assists as well and several of the Wonthaggi runners finishing their work well near goals, including the ever-reliable Aiden Lindsay 2, Noah Anderson 2, Hunter Tiziani, Tom Davey, Brodie Mabilia and Issac Chugg all with one each.

The coach himself should have been on the scoresheet too after he and Cooper McInnes combined to bamboozle the Morwell defence with a series of baulks midway through the third quarter, only for Blair to fluff the easy shot. And Isaac Chugg could have brought the house down moments later, after he picked up the loose ball, on a flat-out run around the flank, before missing an easy shot.

The Power also has the likes of forwards Jack Hutchinson and Harry Dawson to come back in and the versatile Jakeb Thomas, who might have given Toma Huther a chop out last Saturday, one-out in the ruck for most of the day.

But it’s all working seamlessly for the Power at the moment, ahead of a tough four-week run against Maffra, Moe, Leongatha (at Wonthaggi on July 8) and Sale.

Magpies seal the deal against Catani

Poowong’s Mitch De Kleuver clings to the ball by the finger tips. Photo: Jeff Tull

POOWONG welcomed Buln Buln in the U/16s and U/18s and Catani in the reserves and seniors with the ground good for football.

Poowong football and netballers players wore black umpires in remembrance of the passing of Club Life Member Bill McNally; Bill was a great respected clubman with many years of service to the club and community.

The Poowong club pass on their condolences to the McNally family.

The Magpies were forced to make two changes with Steve McInnes and Joel Norton out with injuries replaced by Connor Cunningham and Mitch Whiting.

Catani were well in the game and Poowong was in need of a couple of goals to take advantage of the breeze.

Fortunately, they came from Connor Cunningham from a free kick on the boundary and Will Robertson from the pocket to open up a 17 point lead.

Poowong started well when Jack Hazendonk picked up the ball in the pocket for a good goal, followed by Damien Hansen with a goal from a mark at CHF.

Poowong added a point but Catani were not giving up adding a minor and then from a good snap a goal to get back into the game.

Poowong’s coach asked his team to go back to the game plan and not allow Catani an opportunity to get back into the game.

Catani kicked their fourth from a free kick followed by a point, Mitch DeKleuver added a behind before Catani ran into goal for a six pointer with the margin

A great late goal from Mich Dekleuver on his left foot gave Poowong a 22 point lead at three quarter time.

Poowong’s Jack Hazendonk, Connor Cunningham, Andrew Logan and Alex Henshall were all playing well but Catani were determined and looking for a victory.

Unfortunately, the scoreboard clock was not started and Poowong supporters were nervous not aware of what time was left.

Poowong managed two points, Jack Hazendonk took a couple of match saving marks to help stem the tide.

Catani are rebuilding but will cause a few upsets in the rest of the season, while Poowong with this victory remain two games and percentage clear in fifth place with six wins.

But have to travel to Buln Buln to play the top side next Saturday, this will be a good test for the boys.

The fourths won their first game for the season after some near misses, the thirds suffering from injuries played well, the scoreboard was not a true indication of play.

The reserves played probably the best football for the season falling down in the last kick area.

Hard lesson for Nyora against top team Buln Buln

Nyora’s Jack Rosenow boots it long.

SATURDAY saw us up against the top side in Buln Buln and while the expectation was that we would be competitive, it was hard to imagine a win for our young group.

Buln kicked downwind in the opening quarter and instantly showed why they are top dog by kicking two goals in the first 2 minutes, and looked extremely dangerous every time they went forward.

To Nyora’s credit, we opened our scoring account with a great goal to Marvin Sellers and followed with another by livewire Jack Rosenow.

Considering it was a three or four goal breeze it could be considered a fairly even opening term.

The second quarter saw Buln showing more dominance kicking three goals again.

While we only scored one by Scotty Pugh, who was being kept in check by a former Nyora premiership player in Shaun Beecroft.

The third quarter saw Buln cut loose with their veteran Matty Grey and onballer Mitch Nobelius showing their class, but a great last quarter by our boys who restricted Buln to just one goal.

We went down by 12 goals but

By Nyora Football Club

there is a lot to be taken from the game and well played by Dylan Heylen, who showed his class once again.

Players who battled well all day were Adan and Scotty Pugh along with Jack Rosenow among others.

With five or six senior players due back in after the bye, next week should see our seniors win more games than what they lose in the second half of the season.

Reserves:

Another hard game against a top 5 side but a few handy “ins” for the week.

Welcome back to Rambo and former senior premiership player Burnsy who both showed they are still very handy, and we were still in it at three quarter time.

The last quarter saw Buln run away with it kicking six goals for the quarter but well done to our boys.

With so many senior players due to return soon it should filter down to the twos making them much more competitive.

Sea Eagles do it easily over Dogs

INVERLOCH KONGWAK rode their undefeated streak into the weekend's contest with the struggling Bunyip and looked to make it nine in a row in the wind at the Inverloch Recreation Reserve.

After a little bit of adjusting, young gun Taite Cumming drew first blood the way of the home-town Sea Eagles, before Tim Henschel put through a Bulldogs reply following a confusing 50 metre penalty.

Jordan Bertacco was then the beneficiary of a 50 the other way as the discipline of both sides was tested early.

IK got their second and then their third through more great work from the young duo of Bertacco and Cumming, the latter was tearing it up in the first term, booting a third moments later after a strong contested mark in the goal square.

Inverloch Kongwak took a 19-point lead into the first change, a decent effort considering they were against a slight wind advantage in the opening term.

Now with the wind and their tails up, the Sea Eagles were out to flex their muscles and build a big lead in the second quarter, and they wasted no time doing so, opening scoring with a Nicholas Baltas major within the first minute.

The travelling 'Dogs were able to wrestle a bit of momentum back and make the game a scrappy one for a brief period before IK broke through again with Wyatt's second and Cumming's fourth.

The hosts had extended their lead from 19 at the first break to 62-points as the siren blew for halftime.

Needing to mount some sort of fightback with the wind in the third, the Bulldogs came out and turned the game into a scrappy battle once again in the third.

The Bulldogs were brave but were no match for the IK avalanche in the fourth quarter as Joe Soumilas kicked his first for the day before Pryor proved his first wasn't a fluke with another great set shot.

Boom recruit Tate Short was again dominant for the Sea Eagles, playing across half back and winning plenty of the football for his side, who ran out 138-point winners.

Premier precision punishes the 'Pies

BRIDGING the gap to compete against the best is not an easy assignment and Tooradin-Dalmore proved this point emphatically by polishing off Dalyston to the tune of 95 points.

The Magpies have improved immensely in 2023, however stepping up to face the title holders is a whole different task.

With their mix of experience and youth, topped up by ex-Collingwood compatriots Macaffer and Oxley, the Sea Gulls bat deep and Dalyston missing Marotta, McLean, Smith and Lewis would need to play out of their skins to stay in touch.

Kicking with the advantage of blustery northwesterly the visitors found their bearings quickly with Scanlon posting their first and Oxley another.

A great smother on the flank allowed Hallahan to run forward protected, bouncing three times and finishing on the run to give Dalyston their start.

Tooradin-Dalmore were keen to assert their authority and through methodical ball movement picked apart their hosts to rattle on the next six majors. Dalyston, seemingly, always a step behind and careless with their tackles, found themselves 44 points behind.

The signs were better to commence the second term as the Magpies went coast to coast and Hayden Wallis finished a good team goal.

First gamer Craven and Oxley with goals at the other end stifled the momentum, however the rest of the quarter belonged to Dalyston.

In a ten-minute patch consecutive goals to Carew, Hallahan and Murfett all resulted from clean passages of play to stir the black and white supporters. Despite being five goals adrift at the long break they were mathematically still in the game.

In darkening conditions, the lights came on for the start of the second half. And it was Tooradin-Dalmore who stepped up to take centre stage, slicing and dicing Dalyston for the next twenty minutes. With Brad Butler conducting forward forays and Adam Oxley and teammates icing the cake the Gulls rolled out seven scintillating goals.

The Magpies finally clogged up the back line to stall any more damage and were relieved to hear the three-quarter time siren.

Playing under lights has not been Dalyston's forte this season. Including their Round 1 night game, in seven quarters played under artificial conditions, they have not won one.

The Sea Gulls rounded out their comfortable win by dominating possession in the last twenty-five minutes. Dalyston ended up five goals closer than their respective 2022 contest but still have a long way to go in their progression.

The sixth placed Magpies now travel to play the fifth placed Nar Nar Goon. It will be Bunyip's turn to be tortured by Tooradin-Dalmore.

Bulldogs overpower Cobras in kennel clash

A COUPLE of changes due to injury to Tully Dickie late at training on Thursday night, and Trav Woodfield's pre-existing appointment opened the door for a couple of notable ins.

Ben Taylor returning from the twos, as well as Orlando (Noosh) Kane Gillard back for his first senior game of the year.

After a tight contest in the reserves, an extra tough game was expected with the Bulldogs in third v Cora Lynn Cobras in fourth after 8 rounds – enough games played to indicate that these two teams should be evenly matched.

And for three of the quarters that was to be the way it was, with nothing between the two teams up to half time.

Some notable contributions from both teams across the half, with the Bulldogs jumping out of the blocks with the first score of the game.

Max Blake scored in the first minute, quickly answered by Cora Lynn's movie star Mr T (Ryan Gillis). Then the Bulldogs took control with Bryce Hindhaugh a few minutes later and coach Pedersen relishing his move to the forward line. Not to be outdone, the Cobras conjured two late goals including that goal-kicking machine Nathan Gardiner putting the ball into the tree. An even first quarter was the result.

Early in the second saw an arm wrestle as the ball moved from end to end, but without any major scores.

The Cobras took some control, with that man Gardiner finally stepping up for a major.

Cam Pedersen to the middle resulted in a clean clearance to a perfect lead and goal from Daniel Bourke, and momentum was back with the dogs. The pressure seemed to get to all, with comical turnovers at both ends resulting in goals for both teams including Gardiner again. Mr T - showing he is an excellent leader for the A-Team - scored again to put the Cobras back in front, with Noosh answering soon after from Hayden Bruce's perfect centre work and clearance. All in all, 42-42 at the half time break.

The third turned out to be the one quarter which went against the trend! The umpires took early control showing they meant business to all. Then in stepped Billy Taylor and his offsider Eli Richards.

After a pretty reasonable first half showing sublime skills, Eli led the charge and then in stepped Billy.

Kicking 2 goals in quick succession, combined with a complete change in the middle. Pencil, Cam Brown, Brendan Kimber and Jack Taylor took over completely, all being beautifully served from thatruckman Daniel Bourke serving the ball up on a platter. Billy T stepped in for another couple, all of this interspersed with a single goal to Mr. T at the other end. Another Noosh goal at the end of the quarter – all in all a supreme premiership quarter from the Bulldogs with a 7 goal to 1 score line.

A three quarter time rev-up from coach Shaun Sparks, and to their credit, the Cobras regrouped for the last.

Highlights of an even last were multiple goals to Mr T and Gardiner for the Cobras, and Billy T for the Bulldogs kicking his fifth.

Tarquin McMillan spoils a promising mark.

Killy Bass falls to the Goon

THE PANTHERS failed to make the most of some early opportunities against Nar Nar Goon which would prove costly in later quarters.

The Goon took control during the first quarter, with Jed Smith on fire in the mid-field for Nar Nar Goon, and they moved the ball beautifully on their big ground, and it often ended up in the hands of star full forward Dermott Yawney who kicked seven for the day.

It was much the same during the second quarter, as the Goon managed to take a 55-point lead.

However, in the third quarter when the Panthers upped the pressure outsourcing the Goon with gun mid Nathan Foote and superstar ruckman Dale Gawley leading the way.

They reduced the margin to 38 points at three quarter time, after making the most of the wind advantage.

But the final quarter would seal the deal, as the Goon took back the control finishing 48 points in front.

It was a much-needed win for Nar Nar Goon, and they will be looking for another four points when they play Dalyston in Round 10.

Killy-Bass now meet the Warragul Industrials in what is almost a must-win match if they want to make finals in 2023.

Leigha exceeds expectations with six gold medals

WONTHAGGI resident Leigha Harris brought home six gold medals from two divisions after competing in the International Natural Bodybuilding Association (INBA) show in Brisbane.

With up to 20 competitors across the divisions, and entering both the sports model and bikini divisions, Leigha was stunned with receiving first place for both.

"I took out the overall sports model and the overall bikini which is just absolutely ridiculous! Then I was awarded pro athlete for both of those categories as well."

"I went up there just hoping to place. It's the weirdest feeling when your dreams come true but then they are so exceeded. It's just unbelievable," Leigha said.

Despite Leigha's astonishment, she has reset the bar for herself and will compete at the Natural Olympia World Cup in LA California and the Pinnacle Natural Olympia in Las Vegas in November 2023. An opportunity that was personally extended to her by the head PNBA promoter Philip Ricardo.

Training for the competition for nearly eight months, intense gym sessions and strict meal plans saw Leigha get into winning form.

"It was five training days per week, three lower body, two upper days and that was done every single week for almost eight months, and then one hundred percent stuck to my diet. I didn't have a single thing off plan."

Leigha was determined to give it her best shot and not have any regrets and didn't miss a day of training.

"I just wanted to get up there and know that I put one hundred percent in, because I would hate to get up there and think well if I did this or I did that, I might've got a different spot."

"I fell in love with the journey and showing up every day no matter if you're sick, if it's cold, if it's too hot, if you haven't had enough sleep, you get to bed at the end of the day and you're like you know what, I've shown up, regardless, for myself."

This has been almost a decade long dream for Leigha and with other priorities getting in the way, including travel.

"When in Italy, you do not, not have gelato for breakfast, lunch and dinner."

And then children...

"I fell pregnant with my first child, so I had him on August 21."
